REGISTRATION, GAS RATIONING DELAYED WEEK

Cleveland OPA Orders Dates Changed Since Supplies Fail to Arrive.

SCHOOL ON TONIGHT

County Leaders Indicate No Change Will Be Made In Registration Plan.

BULLETIN

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Delay in the delivery of ration books and forms is causing the office of price administration to "consider seriously" the postponement of gasoline rationing in all presently unrationed areas, an OPA spokesman said today.

With no basic "A" gasoline rationing books available, registration of Mansfield and Richland county passenger auto and motorcycle owners likely will be postponed until Nov. 18-19-20 members of the Richland county rationing board said today

W E Spreng, chairman of the board's gasoline panel, when informed by The News-Journal of the postponement announced by the Office of Price Administration at Cleveland, indicated local registration which was to start Thursday at elementary schools will be set back to Wednesday of next week to comply with the OPA edict

Tonight's school of instruction for volunteer registrars for supplemental registration, Spreng said, will be held at John Simpson auditorium at 7:30, as planned. C. K. Smaltz, local administrator for the conservation of vital war transportation and chairman of the Mansfield war transportation board, urges members of all war plant transportation committees to attend this school.

Delay in distribution of the basic A books will postpone the start of gasoline rationing in Ohio which originally was to begin Nov. 22, although OPA officials refused today to state when rationing actually will start.

Indications are that the gas rationing will probably start some

HOURS CUT

Liquor Stores to Open at Noon and Close at 8.

State liquor stores including the two in Mansfield, will operate on a reduced schedule beginning next Monday, because of the labor shortage, the state liquor control department announced today.

The stores will open at 12 noon and close at 8 p. m. week days and at 9 p. m. Saturdays, the department said, leaving the stores open only 49 hours a week. At present, the stores operate 73 hours a week, opening at 10 a. m. and closing at 10 p. m week days and 11 p. m. Saturdays.

Jacob E. Taylor state liquor director, said it was "virtually impossible to secure efficient help to man adequately the stores on longer schedule"

'We Fight Our Country's Battles On The Land As On The Sea'

The oldest of the United States fighting services, the United States Marine corps, celebrates its 167th birthday today while its gallant members fight once again on fronts scattered over the world but principally among the far-flung islands of the Pacific In its 167-year history, the Marine corps probably has achieved greater fame accumulated more tradition and established itself as a more efficient fighting organization than any other in the world For 100 of the 167 years it has been on active service, "from the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli" and from the polar seas to the warm blue waters of the South seas Already in this war their greatest, the marines have proved themselves capable not only of living up to their old traditions, but of establishing new ones, notably on tiny Wake island whence came their only request—"Send more Japs."

RUSH SHELBY WATER LINE

Plant Acts to Curtail Threat To City as Mayor Calls For All to Conserve.

SHELBY—Work was under way today on an 800-foot pipeline to supply water to the Ohio Seamless Tube company plant after Mayor W R. Morris warned Shelby residents yesterday that the city faces an acute water shortage

The Seamless Tube company and the two railroads operating through Shelby were asked Saturday night to get their water supplies from other sources to conserve the output of two major wells supplying the city

The Tube company is drawing its water now from its own reservoir. Construction of the pipeline leading from the Black Fork creek to the plant is expected to reduce the city load 15 per cent, or 180,000 gallons a day. The firm manufactured the pipe used in the line.

Wells at Shelby have dropped to the lowest point in recent years because of the lowered water table over this entire area, it was pointed out J P Adkins, city utilities superintendent.

Combined with the reduced supply, the increased need for water in war industries created the sersi-

Marines Too Busy Fighting To Celebrate; U. S. Honors Them

(Editor's Note This story has been written for the Associated Press by Lieut Gen Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the United States Marine Corps, on the occasion of the Marines' 167th birthday today.)

By LIEUTENANT GENERAL THOMAS HOLCOMB
(Commandant, U S Marine Corps)

WASHINGTON —(AP) In the Solomons . . . the Aleutians . . . aboard ships of the navy . . . in heat and cold . . . wherever the enemy lurks, I know Marines today will be too busy to celebrate the corps' anniversary They'll be too busy defending the American way.

But the American people in the homes for which these Marines are fighting will remember and do honor on this 167th birthday.

This is fitting and proper because in this greatest of all wars, all Americans stand side by side facing the common enemy of mankind and thus this anniversary takes on a deep significance for every one of us.

By this tribute of "the folks at home" today, the final victory will be brought a little nearer, for in our nation the morale of the fighting men is bolstered by the spirit of the people behind them. What citizens do, think and feel on the home front today will influence, without a doubt, tomorrow's news from the battle fronts.

Since that bleak day of Nov 10, 1775 in Tun tavern Philadelphia, when the future and very existence of these United States hung in the balance, the names of Marines and the places they fought

Eastman Reduces Bus Travel In Six Large Cities.

WASHINGTON —(INS)—Defense Transportation Director Joseph B Eastman today ordered bus service in six of the nation's largest cities drastically reduced to save rubber and equipment.

The cities affected are Baltimore, Chicago, Cincinnati, New York, Philadelphia and Richmond. Eastman estimated that the action will save approximately 100,000,000 bus tire miles a year.

Intensified War Effort To Be Cities Armistice Theme

Armistice day, birthday of an abortive peace, will have a different significance when it is celebrated in Mansfield tomorrow, with the accent not on a conclusion but on the intensification of a world-wide conflict on land and sea, and in the air.

Tomorrow, 24 years after an armistice brought a halt to battlefield hostilities, Mansfield will offer prayers for a victorious and permanent peace for World War II.

Banks, city and county offices will be closed throughout the day, stores and other business places will suspend business from 10:15 to 11:30 a. m., and the hum of industry will lessen at 11 a. m. for a two-minute pause of war work in honor of those who died then, who have died during the last year and those who are carrying on in the far-flung battle sectors of the world.

Climaxing a day of celebration will be a parade of military, semi-military and civic units starting at 8 p. m. Rodney H Chandler of McVey post announced several musical organizations will appear in the column to be held by Co. F., Ohio State Guard The Legion drum corps, color guard and post members will parade under com-

KNOX ISSUES SUB WARNING

Says Nazis Will Concentrate U-Boats on Supply Lines To North Africa.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Navy Knox predicted today that the Germans would concentrate their submarine strength against American supply lines to North Africa in an effort to break down the flow of supplies to our advancing forces there.

While declaring that the North African campaign is "going well," Knox said he wanted to give "one word of warning—that is to point out the difficulties and perils that attend the supply of this effort in North Africa."

He said that it was a certainty that the Nazis would concentrate U-boats against the supply lines, withdrawing them from the North Atlantic areas to do so, and that every supply ship or convoy would have to reach Africa through "an ocean of subs."

This, the secretary told his press conference, would give the navy "heavy additional responsibility."

Knox was high in his praise of the navy's handling of the initial North African operation, calling it "as superb a piece of seamanship as I have ever known"

The secretary said that the

45-Mile-An-Hour Wind Blasts City; Mercury Drop Due

Blasts of wind that blew down signs in the city, tore off pieces of roofing and damaged trees swept a rainstorm into the Mansfield area early today The wind at the Mansfield airport reached a velocity of 45 miles an hour.

Property damage in the city area was believed slight although the wind reached gale proportions before dawn today. Rain which followed the windstorm measured .58 of an inch.

Colder weather was forecast for tonight, but there was nothing to indicate its approach at noon today The mercury then stood at 50 degrees, while the average reading for the past 24 hours was 52 degrees, nearly 12 degrees above normal.

County Engineer Howard Sword said the rain delayed work on the few remaining road jobs in the county. The rain was not heavy enough to damage roads, he added.

All but two of the planes at the airport were in the hangars and no damage was reported there.

'COMMANDOS' CHECK 14,000, PUSH HARDER

Make Two-Thirds of 20,000 Contacts on First Day; Cheered By Gifts.

PLEDGES PILING UP

War Chest Workers Dig With Enthusiasm For Victory Report Tomorrow.

Jubilant over finishing two-thirds of their task in the first day of their offensive yesterday 500 War Chest Commandos pushed on in the rain today, determined to reach their $140,377 objective in record time

Last night's howling wind and rain and overcast skies this morning failed to slow them up All of the Commandos were at their posts early this morning to start a vigorous push toward success Scores of them worked until late last night.

General headquarters announced this morning that contact had been made with nearly 14,000 of the 20,000 persons the Commandos are charged with interviewing Their task for the rest of today and tomorrow is to contact the remaining 6,000 persons and make "call-backs" to interview persons missed on their first round.

Just how much has been raised so far is a subject of conjecture No reports will be made by Commando majors until late tomorrow First public report session will take place at Central Park tomorrow night immediately after the Armistice Day parade.

There is one thing certain, however, in the opinion of War Chest officials Mansfield is giving and giving in unprecedented numbers and amounts

Today brought more stories from Commandos reporting a generous response in War Chest pledges.

"I have served in a number of fund raising campaigns in Mansfield and I never met with such good response as in this one" one Commando reported at headquarters 'My contacts were easy They were all prepared they not only gave double what they did in previous years but in most cases they gave more than that"

The first day's offensive showed plainly that Mansfielders favor one drive rather than a series of campaign for funds over the year All drives for war agencies and Mansfield welfare agencies this year are combined into one.

SIRENS ARRIVE

City Gets Eight of Ten Air Raid Alarm Signals.

Eight of 10 air raid warning sirens ordered from the Federal Electric company, Chicago, were delivered to Mansfield civilian defense officials this morning

Four of the sirens are five-horsepower, three-phase, 60 cycle, 18-ampere, 220-volt motor-equipped while the four smaller sirens for outlying districts are two-horsepower, one-phase, 15-ampere motor units.

J A McDermid, chairman of the technical committee which selected this type of warning signal, Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch, defense coordinator, and Ernest Adams city electrician who will direct the installation of the 10 units, were in conference today regarding locations

Tentative plans call for their mounting on utility poles in strategic locations throughout the city and suburban area

Americans In Port of Oran, Hit Key Points

Fighting Still Rages At Casablanca As Axis Tries Frantically To Stage Counterblow; Darlan Held By U. S. At Algiers.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill today named President Roosevelt as "the author" of the American offensive in French Africa, and declared Marshal Erwin Rommel has been defeated, routed and "very largely destroyed" in the coordinated drive of the Imperial Eighth army in Egypt.

BULLETIN

LONDON—(INS)—The Buenos Aires radio, according to Reuter's, today broadcast a report that United States troops already have entered Tunisia.

(By Associated Press)

Tank-led American troops were reported to have entered the French naval base at Oran today—the second big Mediterranean port to fall in less than 48 hours—while a United States column struck out southeastward from Algiers toward Italian Libya in a move to trap the retreating Axis armies from Egypt.

As the situation boiled to a climax, with American forces reported everywhere successful, Axis leaders were reported frantically seeking means to effect counterblows.

Soviet quarters in London said German Field Marshal Erwin von Witzleben had arrived in North Africa to direct Vichy (French) operations, and there was some speculation that the French fleet might attempt to put in at Bizerte, on the Tunisian coast before U. S. forces arrive there.

The Berlin radio hopefully broadcast reports that the main French fleet had steamed from its European base at Toulon on Sunday, but nothing has been heard from it so far.

Dispatches from La Linea, Spain, reported the arrival of powerful Allied naval reinforcements at Gibraltar, including the British aircraft carrier Furious six destroyers and 22 merchant ships.

The 35,000-ton British battleship Nelson and other warships were reported anchored in the harbor, while overhead many fighter planes kept up a constant patrol

Tank-led U. S Army soldiers and parachutists were reported attacking a series of key points along the Mediterranean and Atlantic coasts, with heavy fighting raging at Casablanca and Orleansville, 100 miles east of fallen Oran.

Algiers the capital of Algeria, had previously surrendered Sunday night

Simultaneously, an Allied headquarters spokesman announced that Admiral Jean Darlan, chief of all Vichy armed forces, was in Algiers in custody of U. S. forces.

The spokesman said Darlan was being "entertained with all the consideration due his rank."

Meanwhile Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower was quoted as saying that Gen. Honore Giraud, France's outstanding military hero who some months ago escaped from a Nazi prison camp, had arrived in Algeria and will head the civil and military government of the French African colonies.

This was considered a tremendously effective move in "swinging the balance to the Allies and bringing the North African cam-

GRIP: U. S. Tightens Hold On Guadalcanal Barring Jap Aid

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON—Lieut. Gen. Thomas Holcomb, marine commandant, reported today "things are shaping up" so that it will be increasingly more difficult for the Japanese to put reinforcements on Guadalcanal island in the Solomons.

Holcomb, who has just returned from a visit to marine posts in the South Pacific, disclosed that the original marine division which went into the Solomons to begin the first American offensive of the war, was still on front line duty there—a three months' period of such duty which he said probably set a record for unbroken service under fire for marine outfits

The general recalled that when one division was held in the front line in the World war for a period of 10 days it was considered extraordinary and a tremendous strain on the men.

"The boys on Guadalcanal are tired and there isn't any doubt about it," Holcomb said. He added that some break down and have to be removed

He also reported to a press conference that the American forces on Guadalcanal outnumber the Japanese there but he did not say by what margin.

Holcomb declared the fighting there had proved that "the young American Marine and the young American soldier are in-

CONFER: Hitler, Duce, Laval Plan Counterblow Against U. S.

(By Associated Press)

LONDON—Adolf Hitler, Benito Mussolini and Pierre Laval were reported meeting in Rome today and unofficial quarters in London believed the fuehrer and his two satellites from Italy and Vichy France were considering some desperate blow to halt the British-American advances in North Africa.

The likeliest spot for the Italian fleet, Axis air forces and possibly the French fleet to strike appeared to be Tunisia through which President Roosevelt has said the American expeditionary force intends to advance to attack Marshal Erwin Rommel from behind.

The meeting of Hitler, the Italian Duce and the Vichy chief of government in Rome was reported by Reuters, British news agency, in a dispatch "from the French frontier."

This report followed the statement from the Berlin radio yesterday that Laval had left Vichy for "an unannounced destination." The Berlin broadcast emphasized that he had not, as is usual, come to Paris.

It was believed that the Italians, facing the fearsome prospect of Allied control of the whole southern Mediterranen, would attempt some desperate counter-stroke.

Laval's inclusion in an Axis conference was considered natural since the German foreign office spokesman announced yesterday

CHAPTER XII

That evening her temperature was 100. "Very silly," Mrs. Sayles reproached Livia. She wanted to get a doctor, but this Livia forbade. As an alternative she submitted to strenuous home-made remedies favored by Mrs. Sayles.

Her temperature was down to 99 in the morning. But she was weak. Mrs. Sayles had visited her three times during the night and early morning.

"You'll stay in bed today," Mrs. Sayles said sternly.

"Just today." Livia smiled at Mrs. Sayles. "And thank you."

But five days elapsed before Livia was strong enough to look for a job. During that time Bruce telephoned twice and came to the House once. But Mrs. Sayles, true to her promise, said:

"I don't know where she is."

"Did he have a girl—a beautiful girl with him?" Livia asked Mrs. Sayles.

"No, he was alone. Why don't you make up with him?" Mrs. Sayles said. She suspected a lovers' quarrel. Livia had not informed her of Bruce's marriage. To put this into words was more than she could bring herself to do. She could barely admit it to herself.

Vera visited her and had joyful news. She was going to have a baby.

"How is Bruce?" Vera said suddenly.

At first Livia lied: "He's fine." But Vera had watched Livia's moods all her life.

"What is it, darling?" She sat on Livia's bed.

"Hey, you'll get my cold." But Vera persisted:

"What is it? Bruce?"

After a short pause, Livia said: "Yes—Bruce." Then, "He's married." Vera's face expressed disbelief. "It's true enough," Livia said bitterly.

"But he loved you!"

"Yeah?" There was silence between them, then Livia said "I suppose it was my own fault. I behaved like a heel." And she told her sister of her attempt and failure to break into the movies. "But that's all over now. I'm sane again."

To change the painful subject, Livia said.

"How is George?"

Vera sighed. "He'll land in trouble one of these days. I know it. Yesterday a man came and asked lots of questions about George. He asked who was financing the book-making. I'm frightened." Livia consoled her.

"George is smart; he can take care of himself." Her sister's worries made her forget her own.

Hope returned with her health. "I know there's a place for me somewhere in this city," she told herself. Not in a studio perhaps—but she was good-looking and had a good figure. She could model clothes. She brightened her pale cheeks with rouge and wore a bright green suit and a green jersey turban; and left Hollywood House determined to have a job before nightfall.

She called at a big department store on Wilshire boulevard.

The brisk, well-groomed, middle-aged woman interrupted Livia's attempt at easeful conversation.

"We do not hire the models in this department," she told her with detached kindness. Livia was self-conscious as she left the department. Did they all know she was after a job? She envied them their smug conviction of belonging.

The executive in charge of employment—a man, thin and with an air of superiority, noted Livia's name and address, also the fact that she was without modelling experience, and promised to let her know should the store require her services.

Livia tried three other big stores with the same procedure and result. They promised to inform her "when we have a vacancy."

Hope thinned with the day, Livia, tired and discouraged, returned to Hollywood House. In the sitting-room were some of the extras she had known. One inquired sympathetically:

"Any luck?" Livia shook her head and hurried up to her room.

For a week Livia called on the stores, big and little. Once she almost got the job. The man who hired the dress models seemed favorably impressed and went with her to the dress department.

A fashion parade was in progress. There were several famous stars in the audience.

During a lull in the mannequin parade, Livia turned away abruptly when the executive said pleasantly: "Oh, how do you do, Miss Delaware?" The film star nodded languidly. "She is one of our biggest buyers," he whispered to Livia.

Alice Delaware left early, and Livia congratulated herself that the actress had not recognized her—until she received a letter from the store informing her they would not require her services at this particular time. There was no proof that Alice Delaware was responsible.

"But, I hate her," Livia stormed angrily.

Livia tried for a sales job.

"I can sell anything," she told them in the shoe stores, in the cheap jewelry shops. But she lost conviction with each rebuff.

A month passed—six weeks. She was now in debt to Hollywood House.

"Don't worry," Mrs. Sayles told her, "if we can't carry you for a few weeks, then we'd better close up the place."

It was about this time that Livia saw the announcement of Terry Davidson's engagement to Elizabeth Nolan—Bruce's sister. She was surprised, remembering Bruce's dislike of Davidson.

There were two boarders at Hollywood House whom Livia liked. Joe Sullivan had played "bits." Ted Curtiss worked as an extra for a year before deciding he would never be a Clark Gable. Ted had blond, curly hair, blue eyes and an irresistible smile, he was now supervisor of a "drive-in." Joe, who had played football for U. C. L. A. and weighed 210 pounds, was working for an aviation company. They shared the only suite of rooms in Hollywood House.

First Joe had taken Livia out. Then Ted. And now the three went to movies together and drove in Ted's car to the beach.

Ted was the first to realize the deep trouble behind Livia's surface gaiety. One day he glimpsed Livia's face, wet with tears, when she returned from the usual futile search for a job.

That evening he knocked at Livia's door.

"Come in," she called. She was lying on her bed.

"You're beautiful," Ted said, staring at the tangled mass of bronze hair on the pillow. Livia smiled and indicated a chair. The door was left open. This was an unwritten rule of Hollywood House.

It was some time before Ted came to the point of his visit. Finally he blurted:

"There's a vacancy for a waitress at the drive-in. If you've nothing better in mind — how about it?"

A waitress in a drive-in! Had she fallen so low in the career scale that she must carry a tray in a drive-in? And wear a fancy dress uniform?

"It's sweet of you," she said flippantly. "But I think I have a good job coming up this week." He was embarrassed.

"Sure," he said, "I didn't offend you, did I?"

"Of course not. I'll be ready to go out in ten minutes."

But Livia was to change her mind within the next forty-eight hours. Something happened, so horrilbe, that she would accept any job—any honorable job.

Livia read an advertisement that seemed to apply to her. In bold, black letters she read: "Hostess wanted. Experience unnecessary. Applicants must be young and attractive. $40 a week and tips."

She applied for the job. To her surprise the interview took place, not in a restaurant or a night-club, but in a luxurious Beverly Hills house. An elderly lady, white-haired, dressed in perfect taste, and with exquisite manners, interviewed her.

"I can't promise anything definite." She smiled with great kindness. "But you'll hear from us again."

"What is the job?" Livia asked. But the lady apparently did not hear. She was leading the way to the door.

In the next morning's mail came the blessed summons. She had the job! Forty dollars a week and tips. The news was too good to keep, and she clattered down the stairs in her mules to tell Joe, Ted, and Mrs. Sayles.

"I've got a job. It's wonderful. I'll tell you all about it tonight."

This time a man was present at the interview with Livia and the gracious white-haired lady. His head was wide and ape-like, and his small black eyes stayed on Livia from the moment she entered the well-furnished room. He picked his front teeth with his thumb nail.

The white-haired woman, her name was Mrs. Fletcher, shook hands warmly with Livia.

"Sit down," she motioned Livia to a wide armchair. Mrs. Fletcher repeated her questions of the day before, and was particularly interested when told that Livia had neither mother nor father. Livia had hesitated before negating her father's existence. But he was dead as far as she was concerned. She wondered at the swift glance that passed from Mrs. Fletcher to the man.

"You have no family at all?" Mrs. Fletcher persisted.

"No," lied Livia. If having a family would prevent her getting this good job, then she had no family. "I came here from Wisconsin. I'd saved up a little money," she told them. "I lived with my aunt in Sauk City, and when she died, I came to Hollywood. I'd always wanted to be in the movies ever since I was a little girl." Here she laughed gaily, as though it were a huge joke to want to be in the movies.

"Your money used up?" inquired Mrs. Fletcher sympathetically.

"Something like that," admitted Livia. There was a slight pause. Then the older woman said:

"A pretty girl like you—you must have a string of beaus." Livia's smile hardened. What on earth could that have to do with the job?

"No," her voice was short.

Mrs. Fletcher apologized profusely. "I've offended you, my dear. But we have to know everything. We couldn't have young men calling on you and taking you from your work." It began to sound like a night-club. Well, that was all right. It might be fun.

"Please stand up." Mrs. Fletcher herself helped Livia to ner feet. "And walk about—anywhere—to the door and back if you like."

"That's splendid," said Mrs. Fletcher. She looked sharply at the man, who nodded almost imperceptibly.

A butler wheeled in a small table.

"You'll have some lunch?" said Mrs. Fletcher. Livia would have preferred to finish the interview and go home. She was getting uncomfortable under the steady gaze of the man. Who was he? And why didn't he speak or do something?

He did not eat lunch with them. And even though Livia had her back to him, she was always conscious of his unwavering stare. Mrs. Fletcher talked with gay animation on the latest book success, the newest movie.

CLUB HEARS PAPER ON COLLEGES, UNIVERSITIES

Mrs. Paul Cropper Reads Mrs. Anna Knote's Article for Victorian Club Program at Women's Club Monday Afternoon.

LUNCHEON was served at the Women's Club at 1 o'clock Monday afternoon when Mrs. C. H. Huston was hostess to members of the Victorian club. The table was centered with yellow chrysanthemums. Mrs. Anna Knote's paper on "Ohio Colleges and Universities" was read by Mrs. Paul Cropper.

Members learned that Ohio has 57 colleges and universities — more than any state in the union. Of these, only 14 are not affiliated with any association of colleges. At the head of the state education system stands Ohio State university, organized in 1870. The correlation of functions among Ohio State and four other state universities is an important administrative problem of the present time, for it is folly to set up duplicate graduate and professional schools in these universities and make them all weak, instead of building a state program with each college doing its part well.

Oberlin is among the earliest colleges established in Ohio. It has always been bold in its policies. It was the first to accept women students. It opened its doors to the Negro in the critical years leading to the Civil War. It maintains the highest standards of scholarship and sends out each year some of the best trained men and women in the nation. Antioch, one of Ohio's famous institutions, has developed a system that combines academic with practical education. It has been extremely successful in this experiment and the general plan is being copied elsewhere.

During the business session, Mrs. Cropper, defense chairman of the club, announced that nutrition classes are being organized by the Red Cross. Mrs. G. V. Smith spoke of the Red Cross need for an unlimited number of blood donors and announced that the blood bank from Bedford will be in Mansfield on Nov. 16 and 17. Instructions for the women's November war bond drive were given by Mrs. Carl Russell. The next meeting will be held at the Women's Club on Nov. 23 with Mrs. W. A. Harbeson as hostess.

CHI SIGMA MOTHERS.

Chi Sigma Mother's club meeting will be held Wednesday at the home of Mrs. H. H. Clingan, 208 Vennum avenue. Luncheon will be served at 1 p. m.

SOCIETY & CLUBS

Be Lovely, Even When Winter Comes

EVEN THOUGH FAIR LADIES ARE AWARE THAT, IF WINTER COMES, SPRING CAN'T BE FAR BEHIND, THEY'D JUST AS SOON HAVE A NICE, WARM FUR COAT, AS ILLUSTRATED BY THE LOVELIES BELOW.

Joyce Reynolds, currently playing in Warners' "George Washington Slept Here," models a youthful coat of Broadtail Persian, smartly trimmed with shiny, black velveteen. The buttons are white mother-of-pearl with flower-like centers.

Brenda Marshall's brunette beauty is emphasized by this Silver Fox finger-tip length cape. The squared shoulder effect is very flattering. Brenda is in Warners' "The Constant Nymph."

Nancy Coleman follows the vogue for blended gray Persian Lamb. The three-quarter length swagger coat, with its rolled collar tops a wool dress of deeper gray. Note the pancake beret of soft gray felt. Nancy is now appearing in Warners' "The Gay Sisters."

Church Society Meets At Home Of Mrs. Hunt

The meeting of the Mary Voegele Missionary society of St. Matthew's Lutheran church was held Monday at the home of Mrs. Floyd Hunt on Rowland avenue. Guests were Mrs. Charles Matti, Mrs. E. C. Jenkins and Mrs. T. S. Schacher. Mrs. Matti told of her missionary work in China before her recent return. Seventeen members and four newcomers were present for the meeting.

Mrs. William Mabee, president, conducted the business session and Mrs. Charles Nussbaum had charge of devotions. Plans were made to have a mission study class meeting in December in the form of a dinner. Members of the committee for that occasion are Mrs. P. H. Woodard, chairman, Mrs. Donald Spayde, Mrs. Charles Sheriff and Mrs. Robert Myers.

The program committee for the year is comprised of Mrs. Nussbaum, chairman, Mrs. Kenneth Pendleton and Mrs. Sheriff. There was singing of missionary hymns during the devotional period. Mrs. Pendleton, chairman of the Christmas work, will be assisted by Mrs. Howard Baughman, Mrs. R. Daugherty and Mrs. Sheriff.

The next meeting will be held Dec. 14 at the home of Mrs. Kenneth Geer, Parkview street. There will be a gift exchange.

Miss Marie Hecht Is Club Hostess

Miss Marie Hecht entertained members of the Little Flower Study club at her home on Penn avenue last evening. During the business meeting the group voted to contribute to the Community War Chest. An appeal was made to members for blood donors and attendance at the Red Cross nutrition classes.

Miss Hecht was appointed the club's representative to the League of Women Voters. "Destination — Chungking," by Han Suyin, was given by Mrs. J. A. Wassar. This is a true war story of the life of a Chinese girl still in her twenties. Luncheon was served by the hostess at a large table centered with chrysanthemums.

RECREATION CLUB.

The East Mansfield Women's Recreation club met last evening at the school. Officers elected are president, Mrs. Jane Brubaker; secretary-treasurer, Mrs. Ellen Wittel; and publicity chairman, Mrs. Katherine Schutt. Games and cards were enjoyed and refreshments were served. Mrs. Martha Landfair and Mrs. Brubaker will entertain on Nov. 23.

CHI OMEGA ALUMNAE.

Chi Omega Alumnae enjoyed luncheon Monday at the Women's Club. Mrs. Dale Balph, hostess, also conducted the business session. A report was given by the nominating committee which consists of Mrs. Balph, Mrs. Harold Butzloff and Mrs. Ralph Wharton. The group contributed to the Community War Chest. Time and place for the December meeting will be announced.

CLASS ELECTS

SHELBY — Chosen as officers of the Men's Brotherhood class of the First Lutheran church were: Ross Gates, president; Robert Hurl, vice president; Ross Stroup, secretary-treasurer; Glenn Davidson, pianist; and Hal Cumberworth, chorister.

MISSIONARY SOCIETY MEETS MONDAY NIGHT

Mrs. Roy Reece Entertains Florence Welty Group at Her Home on Wooster Road; Plan Thank-Offering Program.

TWENTY-TWO MEMBERS of the Florence Welty Missionary society and two guests, Miss Ann Hall and Mrs. Georgia Moore, were entertained last evening by Mrs. Roy Reece, Wooster road. Mrs. Robert Albers and Mrs. Katherine Drago were welcomed as new members. The scripture was read by Miss Virginia Wagner and the topic, "Thanksgiving for Great Leaders," was presented by Miss Miriam Dye and Mrs. John S. Brant.

The business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. Gladys Brightbill. Plans were made to have the annual thank offering program on Sunday, Nov. 15, in conjunction with the regular church service. The Women's Missionary and Florence Welty societies will be in charge. Guest speaker will be Mrs. Paul Knauss of Marion.

Reports were given by Mrs. Dolly Diehm and Mrs. Marion Klippel, who were delegates to the 22nd annual convention of the Women's Missionary society, which was held recently at St. Paul's Lutheran church in Bucyrus. Luncheon was served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Edna Stevens and Miss Reba Robinson. The Christmas meeting will be held at the parish house on Dec. 14.

Thank Offering Meeting Planned

The Women's Missionary society of St. Luke's Lutheran church met in the church basement Monday evening with 22 members in attendance. Hostesses were Mrs. M. O. Doolittle and Mrs. C. C. Blair. Devotions were led by Mrs. David Martin and the lesson was taught by Mrs. Philip Wolfe. Subject was "The Life of Henry Muhlenberg, as Told by His Family."

Miss Sarah Krumm gave a report of the missionary convention held at Bucyrus Oct. 20 and 21. Attention was called to the thank-offering meeting to be held at the morning service on Sunday, Nov. 22. Members were urged to attend the Day of Prayer service on Nov. 11 at the Presbyterian church. Next meeting will be Dec. 14.

Past Presidents' Club Plans Party

Twelve members were present for the meeting of the Past Presidents' club of Mary B. Mitchell Tent No. 40, Daughters of Union Veterans, in Memorial hall Monday afternoon. Mrs. Alice Oster, president, had charge of the business session and Mrs. Mary Johnson gave the devotions.

Plans were made to have a Christmas and gift exchange on Dec. 18 at the home of Mrs. Jane Taylor, West Fourth street. Mrs. Alice Hunter will be associate hostess. Dinner was served at 6 o'clock last evening by Mrs. Della Cochran and her committee. The attractive table appointments consisted of red, white and blue candles and flags.

Guild Meeting Held At Home

Twenty-three members of the Rachel France Guild of the First Presbyterian church and two guests met at the home of Mrs. O. I. Alverson, 116 Rowland avenue, Monday. Associate hostesses were Miss Cloude Blake and Mrs. William B. Nussbaum. Miss Bess Wickert presented an interesting program on "Christianity in the Business World."

Devotions were led by Mrs. David N. Roller. Members sewed quilt patches and made nut cups which will be sent to southern Ohio. Next meeting will be Dec. 14 at the home of Miss Henrietta Frank, 33 Sycamore street.

Luncheon Served To Bexley Guild

Bexley Guild of Grace Episcopal church met for luncheon at 1 p. m. Monday at the home of Mrs. J. D. Reynolds, 509 Sloan avenue. Mrs. Charles Atkins was assistant hostess. The business meeting was in charge of Mrs. C. H. Guy, president. Mrs. Lee Boyd, chairman of the ways and means committee, announced that a rummage sale will be held Nov. 12 and 13.

Rev. Glenn Lewis spoke on the Latin American countries. Next meeting will be held Dec. 7 at the home of Mrs. Wayne H. Hoffman, 512 West Townview circle. Mrs. James A. McKee will be associate hostess.

MOTHER GRAY'S SWEET POWDERS

"Pitfalls of Love"

(A Sequel to Marriage Meddlers)

By ADELE GARRISON

Dicky's query caught me unaware, and I could not control a convulsive start as I realized that my husband must have noted my telltale face at the hideaway.

But I managed to control my voice as I answered: "Neither of the things you mentioned is 'winding me up'."

Yet I had been piqued to know that my father had confided to Dicky. Jack's continued presence at the hideaway, meantime keeping me in ignorance of my brother-cousin's whereabouts and condemning Katharine to torturing suspense about her husband's safety.

"I was surprised, naturally," I went on, "to know Jack has been safe at the hideaway, while I have been trying to quiet Katharine's frantic anxiety about him, but I am not aware of any nerve tension."

Reason to Be Sore.

My husband gave me a disarmingly tender smile.

"Snap out of it, old girl," he admonished me. 'You're sore, and I don't blame you. In your place I'd be biting nails in two. Sure you wouldn't feel better if you emitted a lady-like damn or two?"

That set me off into laughter, and he lifted me into his arms, then sat down, cradling me as he does our baby, Faith.

"Here are two things you'd better digest before you get any sorer," he said. "First, Dad didn't tell me about Jack being at the hideaway. I stumbled on the knowledge about as you did. Second, Dad's kept you in ignorance because Jack insisted you must not know, lest you betray your knowledge to Katharine."

Promise to Jack.

"I promised Jack the night he came to the hideaway, that I would not tell Katharine until he gave me permission," I said resentfully. "But why did Father tell me Jack had gone away again, when he never had left?"

"But he did leave," Dicky said surprisingly. "Dad told you the truth, holding back only that Jack had promised to return to the hideaway, if he could not find another place free from danger where he could complete his experiment.

"He returned within twenty-four hours, mostly, I imagine because he could find no place where he would not endanger old Professor Diswell for whom the gangsters are still looking, both Jack and Dad are sure, because they think they could force the old professor to decipher the crytogram. So both Jack and Professor Diswell are still at the hideaway.

Still Rebellious.

"Dad didn't deceive you, you see," Dicky finished triumphantly. "He simply, at Jack's insistence, omitted to tell you of your cousin's return. Does that satisfy you?"

"It will have to," I said, still rebellious at Katharine's continued crucifixion. "There isn't anything I can do about it."

"You might let Dad know you lamped old Jack," my husband suggested doubtfully. "He might bring pressure to bear on Jack to rescind the ban on telling Katharine."

"You know very well he would do nothing of the sort," I retorted a bit acidly. "So there's no use annoying him by telling him I saw Jack."

"Sensible girl!" my husband commended. 'Let's talk of something else. What do you suppose Olga wants of you?'

The Old Post Exchange Ain't What It Used To Be

By WALDO WIESE

(Wide World Features)

FORT DES MOINES, Ia.—The "Hell for Leather" cavalry boys wouldn't recognize their old hangout today.

The post exchange at Fort Des Moines, where cavalrymen swapped stories, enjoyed soft drinks and bought mementoes of army life for 40 years, now features powder puffs, soap flakes and nail polish.

There's a modern "self-service" section around the balcony where the new residents—members of the Women's Army Auxiliary Corps—can buy personal items, snacks of food and other things to round out life on the post.

Display cases that once held pocket knives, men's handkerchiefs and watches now hold items reserved for women only.

Several cases are filled with various types of vanity cases, powder boxes, nail polish, polish remover and cosmetic sets. There are dainty kerchief displays and cases of jewelry—clips, rings and pins.

In the balcony "self-service" department a dozen types of soap flakes and other items for washing hose and underthings are on display in typical grocery store fashion.

There is the usual soda fountain, soft drink bar, candy department and counters displaying cameras, postcards and souvenirs.

The exchange still sells cigars, cigarets and tobacco—there are many men officers and soldiers on the post—but generally speaking, boys, you wouldn't recognize your old place.

Remember when a woman was a novelty in the building? Ninety per cent of the customers are women now.

HOROSCOPE

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, November 11

A GENERALLY adverse and challenging state of affairs is read from a disheartening chain of planetary configurations. It is difficult to make much definite or constructive progress under such influences, which seem to undermine worthy effort at the very source of inspiration as well as execution. With secret, subtle and in places sinister machinations, menacing both public and private activities it would demand much ingenuity, shrewd and sagacious manipulation as well as canny insight and programs in order to make much headway. The major danger would be in stooping to kindred fraud or intrigue.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves involved in a year of intrigue, trickery, duplicity and fraud in which it may be next to impossible to make much progress. Peculiar situations and influences seem to beset the path, on all sides, and it will take some clever strategies, much vigilance and sound tactics to avert embroilment in difficulties of a sinister nature. The outstanding menace, however, may be a predisposition to resort to similar deceitful and discreditable tactics, so forfeiting public approbation or inviting drastic public reprisals. Keep integrity and honor intact.

ST. PETER'S GUILD.

Hostess to St. Peter's Guild for luncheon at the Mansfield-Leland hotel on Monday was Mrs. Louis Heman. Later, the 12 members went to the home of Mrs. Heman on Western avenue where bridge was enjoyed. Prizes were won by Mrs. Leo Perl and Mrs. P. J. Kelly. Mrs. John Kunz will entertain with luncheon at the hotel at 1 p. m. on Nov. 23.

CLUB OF TODAY.

Mrs. Myrtle Krupp, 549 Johns avenue, entertained the Club of Today for an all-day meeting recently. A potluck dinner was held. Mrs. Paul Kurbad joined the club. Contests were won by Mrs. Paul Schweyer and Mrs. Arthur Garverick. Mrs. Ray Patson received the door prize. Mrs. Robert Enderle will be hostess for the Christmas exchange on Dec. 3.

HEADS GUILD

MILLERSBURG — Miss Hattie Brumme was elected president of the Women's Guild of St. John's Evangelical and Reformed church at a meeting Thursday evening. Mrs. Vera Rottman was elected vice president, Mrs. Alice Ittner, secretary; and Mrs. Lenora McCullogh, treasurer.

ASHLAND ENDS FUND CAMPAIGN, GOES OVER TOP

$35,040 Raised in Pledges and Cash To Oversubscribe Goal of $32,900.

ASHLAND—The Ashland Community Fund campaign has reached a successful completion with a total of $35,040.15 raised in pledges and cash gifts. The goal was $32,900.

The campaign chairmaned by S. F. Jameson began Oct. 26. It was the 15th annual Community Chest drive in Ashland.

ASHLAND — Miss Elizabeth Beckwith, who has been Ashland county Home Demonstration agent for the past three years, has accepted a position as Home Demonstration agent of Franklin county. She will assume her new duties in Columbus on Dec. 1.

Miss Beckwith, whose home is in McConnellsville, came to Ashland after teaching Home Economics at Oak Harbor high school.

Her successor in the extension office here has not yet been made.

ASHLAND—Raymond L. Waggoner, 31, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tully Waggoner of Ashland, and chief machinist's mate, United States Navy, has been awarded the Silver Star Medal for bravery. One of four enlisted men to get the Silver Star, the Navy department revealed the citation "for distinguished gallantry and intrepedity as a member of the engineering organization of the vessel to which he was attached during operations by a striking force against enemy Japanese." The citation further states that Waggoner helped maintain the engineering department of the vessel in such a high state of efficiency that when she almost ran aground on a reef, she was able to extricate herself without damage.

Waggoner enlisted in the Navy July 2, 1928 His last visit to his home here was six years ago.

WEDS SOLDIER

Ashland Girl Married at Church Sunday.

ASHLAND — Miss Virginia Louise Page, daughter of Mr and Mrs. G. Reid Page of Ashland, and Private Keith Bowen, son of S. R. Bowen of San Diego, Calif., were married Sunday afternoon at the First Presbyterian church here with Dr. H. E. Andrews, pastor of the church, officiating.

Only immediate families of the couple were present. The bride's father gave her in marriage and her brother, Jack Page of Ashland, was the best man and only attendant. Nuptial organ music was by Miss Carol Greshner. The bride wore Teal blue with black accessories and a corsage of pink rosebuds and narcissus.

Following a wedding trip to Michigan, Private and Mrs. Bowen will reside at Port Clinton. The bride and groom are both graduates of Ashland high school, and the latter attended Ohio university and Ashland college before entering the service. He is stationed at Erie Proving Grounds at LeCarne.

ILLNESS FATAL

Mrs. Clyde Dies at Bucyrus, Rites Wednesday.

WOMAN'S CLUB AT CRESTLINE HEARS REVIEW OF 'TAP ROOTS'

CRESTLINE—"Tap Roots" by James Street, was reviewed by Mrs. Helen Petty of Loudonville at the November meeting of the Crestline Woman's club held last evening in the social room of the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. Petty, a former Crestline resident, gave an interesting review of the book which dealt on Mississippi.

The speaker was introduced by Mrs. J. F. McMahon, president, and she also introduced H. T. Gall, who spoke to the club on the collection of fats, tin cans and silk stockings for the government, and urged the club to make a house to house canvass of these materials.

Mrs. McMahon asked the club members who could, to register for work at Crestline's Service Center. She also spoke of Chinese relief and gave out literature along this line. She spoke of the Christmas cards the club was sending to all service men of Crestline and asked the co-operation in adding a note of cheer and in addressing the cards.

Size of that 61-0 score rolled up by Canton McKinley last Saturday over Mansfield high was just as big a surprise to Canton fans as it was to Mansfielders, but more pleasant.

Said Jack Maxwell in the Canton Repository:

"McKinley's Bulldogs bounced back from their Steubenville defeat to turn in an expected victory over Mansfield, but their rebound hit unforeseen proportions."

Maxwell declared that the Bulldogs played their most brilliant game of the season, and finally showed the poise and snap they had lacked in several previous struggles.

The Tygers, he said, revealed flashes of form offensively, but their defense simply could not halt the Bulldogs. Mansfield threatened only twice, one drive ending on the McKinley 10 and the other on the 19.

It had to be the Tygers' luck that they met McKinley on the day when the Bulldogs reached their peak for the season.

* * *

Talk about bouncing back from defeat. Portsmouth's Trojans took a double rebound last week.

After being swamped by Mansfield, the Trojans took on two rival Portsmouth teams in a double header, defeating Central Catholic's Titans 7-6, and winning from East's Tartans 16-0.

Those Portsmouth schools certainly go for the "T" formation in nicknames — Trojans, Tartans, Titans.

It begins to look like Springfield was the most highly overrated team of the present season in Ohio scholastic football.

The Wildcats' scoreless tie with Columbus East last week was in keeping with the disappointing record for the year. And before the season opened, Coach Jim McDonald was quoted as believing the 'Cats might win eight of their nine games.

That was a big limb for Coach Jim to be crawling out on, but he didn't know the limb was rotten at the core, and would break down with him.

Camilli Asks For Release

Dodger First Baseman Seeks Manager's Post.

NEW YORK—(INS)—The Brooklyn Baseball club greeted with stony silence a report from the coast that Dolf Camilli, their star first baseman wanted his release to manage a Pacific coast baseball club in 1943

Branch Rickey new general manager of the Brooklyn Bums, is establishing a new record for disappearance Branch was not available for the past 48 hours to discuss the matter of Camilli's ultimatum issued Sunday night in which Camilli said he was not going back to Brooklyn to play ball in '43

Camilli, who said he did not intend to quit baseball but would do so unless he was given his release by the Dodgers gave as his main reason the expenses involved in maintaining separate homes in California and Flatbush.

A spokesman for the Dodgers said however, the statement was just a typical Camilli preliminary to tip the Brooklyn club off that it would have to come nigh to get his services next season

Dolf, undoubtedly one of the most valuable players in the game under present conditions is good for several more seasons and with five children is draft-free. As several clubs need first sackers he could probably attract about $75,000 if he's put on the block, something the Dodger directors don't want to do—and Camilli knows it.

So it looks like the next move is up to Rickey—if he ever comes out of hiding.

DICK ADOLPH GETS BIRTHDAY PRESENT

CLEVELAND — (INS) — Dick Adolph, the Cleveland Baron who suffered a fractured skull in an exhibition hockey game with the Detroit Red Wings Oct. 27, learned today that he would be expected to return to the Baron line-up about Jan. 1 and possibly before that date. This will be good news to Coach Bill Cook for he has been hard up for defense men for quite some time Capt. Bill MacKenzie, defense man, is also out with a broken hand.

Athletes Donning Cage Togs

Grid to Court Change Made By Some Schools.

By JOHN COLBURN

COLUMBUS —(AP)— Ohio's high school athletes trade football togs for basketball uniforms in many sectors this week as the 1942 gridiron season neared a close with Massillon's unperturbable Tigers rolling their victory string to 51 games.

With basketball play already started in many districts, some scholastic gridders wound up their season last week and only a few games are carded after this week's contests.

Bob Lucas, Paulding's 18-year-old sensational junior backfield star, ended his season with a terrific scoring splurge to grab the individual point-making championship. He garnered 53 to run his season's total to 272 points as Paulding beat Elida 62 to 0 to win the Little Buckeye conference championship.

Lucas in his three years of football has counted 468 points

While Massillon was annexing No. 51 by trouncing Toledo Waite 34 to 14, its traditional rival, Canton McKinley, gained encouragement for their approaching grudge battle with the Tigers by swamping Mansfield 61 to 0.

McKinley partisans pointed out that Massillon was able to beat Mansfield only 32 to 0. They clash Nov. 21.

Six other teams in addition to Massillon kept long victory records intact in last week's engagements.

The Xenia Ohio Soldiers and Sailors Orphans' Home eleven concluded its season by chalking up its 28th straight win in a game with Lancaster Boys' Industrial school.

Powhatan was held to a surprise 13-all tie by St Clairsville, but maintained a record of being unbeaten in 25 games Tiltonville has 23 straight, Lakewood 21, Toledo Libbey 17 and Fredericktown 14.

Other undefeated teams this year include: Columbus North, Miamisburg, Dover, Boardman, Arlington, Hudson, and Sandusky St. Mary's, all triumphant in eight games, and Dayton Oakwood, winner of seven.

While Lakewood was winning its 21st consecutive game against Shaker Heights the Rangers had their goal crossed for the first time. Chuck Gruppadaurria, Shaker Heights halfback, sprinted 80 yards to give Shaker 6 points against Lakewood's 32.

Another of Ohio's unscored on teams not only was scored on but was outscored Medina had blanked its opponents in winning seven straight games, but Clearview apparently hadn't heard about the record. Clearview trounced Medina on its home field 20 to 6.

Undefeated Dover is expected to have little trouble beating Cambridge Friday night to clinch the Central Ohio league title while the Muskingum Valley league title went to Glouster which hadn't lost any of its six league games.

Up in northeastern Ohio, Ashtabula holds the reins in the Lake Shore league with a season record of six wins and a tie. Down in the Southeastern Ohio league Middleport also continued unbeaten but tied once in seven games.

Sandusky St Mary's by finishing its eight games without a loss gave Coach Lee Zierolf his fourth undefeated team in 10 years of coaching at Sandusky. The others were in 1934, 1935 and 1940.

The only individual close to Lucas in the individual scoring competition is Ollie Cline of Fredericktown, whose 149 points in six games this year still left him 122 behind Lucas. Cline got 13 as Fredericktown won its 14th straight over Granville 20 to 0.

* * *

Tiltonville owed its 23rd straight to Regis Leonard, who hurled three touchdown passes in the 20 to 13 win over neighboring Yorkville. Last spring, it was Leonard who pitched Tiltonville to the Ohio scholastic baseball championship.

The big game of the week on the scholastic front — Lakewood trying for victory No 22 against powerful Canton McKinley.

Most disappointed player of the past week—Don Cunningham of Glouster who ran an intercepted pass 101 yards only to have the touchdown called back because of a penalty

DORAZIO MEETS TURKEY THOMPSON

Invitation To Rose Bowl Looms For Notre Dame

By JACK MAHON
International News Service Sports Writer.

NEW YORK — Our grapevine from the west coast which sputters less frequently these days than it has in the past, came to life over the week end with the information that Notre Dame is No. 1 on the Rose Bowl committee's invitation list this fall, and if it goes through the rest of its schedule unscathed will get the first bid to the Tournament of Roses game at Pasadena, New Years day.

* * *

Assuming N. D. does just that —which won't be, by any means, easy—we are in a position to state there is a better than even chance of them breaking tradition and accepting such an offer.

The Fighting Irish has not played in the Rose Bowl since '25 when they downed Stanford 27-10. The faculty board of control has been the recipient of "feelers" many times in the years that have passed but have steadfastly refused to accept any Bowl bids.

The tremendous success of the team at the box-office undoubtedly enabled them to stick to this policy but we learned from a close contact at the South Bend school, who must remain anonymous, that a couple of factors may influence the board to act favorably on a post-season bid this time.

Decrease in attendance figures and box office receipts due to the war, the possibility that there may not be another college season in '43 and the 18-19 draft which may insure the collapse of the rah rah grid game all add up in favor of collecting as much grid gold as possible, while it is possible.

Our South Bend spy pointed out Notre Dame is by no means as highly endowed as several other big schools in the country and despite past successes at the box-office—and the aforementioned problems of the future—might look very kindly on a $50,000 or $75,000 bowl check this year!

Because of transportation difficulties, the South Bend school is also better situated to make a trip to Pasadena than some of the southern schools, such as Georgia and Georgia Tech, and, as we get it, this factor also counts heavily with the Tournament of Roses officials.

Coach Frank Leahy refused to comment personally on the question. He pointed out the board of faculty control announced in midseason last year Notre Dame would not accept any post-season offers but admitted he didn't know if they would stick to such a policy this year

Leahy also had a little thing called "schedule" to worry about. Notre Dame has no easy sailing from here in with Michigan, Northwestern, Southern California and the Great Lakes Training Base club to face before it can talk about post-season battles.

The feeling around this town, after watching the Irish go through their paces with Army Saturday, is that Michigan will be the powder keg that will blow Notre Dame out of not only the bowl—but also, the 1942 football picture.

* * *

The Wolverines lost to Iowa preflight, since swamped by N. D. 28-0, but have looked increasingly powerful ever since. Notre Dame, touted as one of the country's greats, looked no better than "pretty good" in beating Army 13-0 With Angelo Bertelli's receivers thoroughly covered, N D. would have been held to a single touchdown by the Army line, except for a last second freak pass. Michigan is rated much stronger than the Cadets.

Georgia Retains Top Spot

Ohio State Drops To Tenth in Ranking.

NEW YORK—(AP)—It isn't likely that last Saturday's collection of upsets will be duplicated this week-end but that doesn't mean there won't be a lot of shifting in the next Associated Press poll to determine the 10 best collegiate football teams.

* * *

Right now Georgia and Georgia Tech are at the top of the ladder of public opinion as expressed by 112 experts and it isn't likely that the Sinkwich, Davis, Trippi & company outfit will be much disturbed by Chattanooga.

* * *

But Georgia Tech, with its head coach ordered from the gridiron by his physician, runs smack into Alabama, in second place two short weeks ago and still in fifth position despite its defeat by Georgia.

Another battle finds fourth place Notre Dame tangling with Michigan, in sixth place although it lost earlier in the season to both the Iowa Pre-Flight Cadets and to Minnesota.

The complete first ten, with their first place votes in parentheses and their points figured on a basis of 10 for each place vote:

Georgia (85)	1088
Georgia Tech (14)	988
Boston College (10)	819.5
Notre Dame (1)	772.6
Alabama	418 6
Michigan	349
Wisconsin	208.6
Texas	207.6
Tulsa (1)	205.5
Ohio State (1)	204.6

Another contest which involves a pair of leaders is the orphaned Ohio State-Illinois struggle which will be put on in the huge stadium at Cleveland. The Buckeyes, leaders in the first three polls this season, have dropped to tenth place now, although one critic still deems them the best in the country.

* * *

Although neither club is in the first grouping, a game involving two of the country's better teams finds Iowa, No. 12, invading Minnesota, No. 16.

Sealtest Team Keeps Lead

Eckleberger Turns In Best C-Loop Score.

Telling's Sealtest retained first place in the Commercial "C" bowling league with a 2-1 victory over Morahan Market at Colony alleys last night, but a second place Sons of Herman climbed within a game of the top with a 3-0 win over Sowash Cleaners. Third place Mayer Drugs scored a shutout victory over Koogle Grocery.

J. Eckleberger rolled high score with 592 on games of 162-225-205. Ray Bottorf had high game of 232

Clatt Clicks For Irish

Sophomore Corwin Clatt, No. 69, pictured during one of his rambles against Army, is one of the big reasons the Notre Dame football team has come roaring back after a bad start this season. Clatt is the chief offensive threat of the Irish on the ground. He is a bruising type of line-bucker. Only 18 years old, Clatt comes from East Peoria, Ill. He weighs 198 pounds and stands an even six feet.

Sport Roundup

NEW YORK — (AP) — This (if read) probably will draw rebuttals from at least 47 places, but off this season's football records we figure it will be just too bad for other states if those Ohio grid coaches ever carry out their threat to route all their good players to Ohio State . . . as if the Buckeyes weren't already good enough, just think what they'd be if you added, say, Frankie Sinkwich and his catcher, George Poschner, now at Georgia; Eddie Prokop from Cleveland and Georgia Tech; Hills Hume and Jack Martin of Navy; Rochester's Jimmy Secrest, leading scorer in the east, and those Colgate freshmen from Columbus, Jack Clifford and Walt McQuade, who were two good reasons why Columbia lost that "basketball" game Saturday . . . anyway, you no longer can say the way to get a football team is to head for the Pennsylvania coal mines.

TODAY'S GUEST STAR

Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune: "We'll make a small wager that Dewey (Snorter) Luster of Oklahoma is the envy of more than one college coach . . . if Luster has any intricate football problems, he doesn't have to go off his campus to get expert advice from the nation's No. 1 football coach . . . that is, if Lieut. Comm. George Halas of naval aviation has any time for football problems."

SHELBY OPENS CAGE PRACTICE

SHELBY — Fifteen candidates reported for basketball drills Monday night at Shelby high school.

Conditioning drills are being held by the squad until the close of the football season this Friday night at Crestline. The football players will join the squad in practices scheduled for next week.

Two veterans from last year's team, Ralph Higgins and Bill Emich, reported for the conditioning drills Monday. Other veterans are members of the football squad.

The football season will close for Shelby Friday night at Crestline. The non-league contest is expected to be a close game.

BO M'MILLIN URGES SPORT CONTINUATION

CHICAGO — (INS) — Alvin "Bo" McMillin, University of Indiana football coach, was on record today with a plea for retaining competitive sports for the duration of the war.

In an address before the Quarterback club in Chicago, McMillin declared:

"Our competitive games give us a plus value in preparing young men for service in the armed forces—a plus value that can never be attained simply through physical hardening courses."

Bucks Look For Rough Hard Tilt

Battle Illinois at Cleveland Saturday.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — A hard, rough game with the accent on speed and wide-open play is the way Ohio State's Western conference title meeting with Illinois stacks up today.

For 60 minutes they'll battle in Cleveland Saturday to see which will stay in the top spot, a position they now share with Iowa. The Hawkeyes must upset dangerous Minnesota to keep in the running. Each of the leaders has won three and lost one game.

Paul Bixler, assistant Ohio coach, reported after scouting the Illini that they have a fast-moving team with players who follow the ball like hawks and play a hard, bruising game. Illinois has scored twice this year on ball-stealing plays.

* * *

Ohio State, with one of the fastest charging lines in the conference, also gave evidence in Saturday's Pittsburgh game that it would supplement its line-crushing offensive power with more passes and a greater use of end runs—a type of game Illinois also uses.

That the Bucks would do more passing also was apparent in the shift that sent George Slusser of Massillon from third string left halfback to alternate with Les Horvath of Cleveland in the regular right halfback position.

Slusser is Ohio's ace passer and what Brown describes as an "all-round, resourceful player." He moved to the spot held by Bob Frye of Crestline, who suffered a broken left leg Saturday.

Satisfied that he had filled the right halfback post in capable fashion, Brown bemoaned his lack of a punter as Bixler recounted how Illinois' right halfback, Walt Correll, consistently kicks the ball 50 to 70 yards.

Two of Ohio's best punters, Bill Durtschi and Tom Cleary, are on the injury shelf and prob

MARK BIRTHDAY ON BATTLEFRONT

Marines Too Busy Fighting to Celebrate, But Nation Honors Them Today.

have come to be milestones in the building of our democracy.

These names and places are bywords in the corps. The capture of New Providence in the Bahamas under Captain Samuel Nicholas, later the first commandant . . . Lt. Presley O'Bannon . . . and Tripoli . . . Captain Lloyd Williams . . . World war one . . . the men of the corps at Mont Blanc . . . Soisson . . . Belleau wood . . . Midway and Major Lofton R. Henderson . . . Wake Island and Lt. Col. James Devereux . . . these men and thousands like them.

Yet no one man or group of men has made the Marine corps what it is today. The corps has been the result of collective study, work, sacrifice and unending service. Nor does the traditional courage come from the deeds of individual heroes or isolated battle episodes. These are but pieces of the story of the corps as fitted together by historians.

In that span from 1775, Marines have made more than 180 landings on foreign shores, have seen service in every war waged against America. Marines raised the first flag over Alaska and, at the opposite end of the world, they accompanied Admiral Byrd on his expeditions to the Antarctic regions. In the peaceful lulls they have continued to carry on their tasks of guarding the democracy.

We never have had a large force of Marines. It always expands many fold during war, yet it continues to remain comparatively small. Regardless of their number, the men of the corps never fail to uphold its traditions in any task that falls to their lot.

It is always the corps, true to its tradition and its high motto . . . Semper Fidelis . . . Always Faithful. On the battlefields of the Pacific where they are spearheading America's first land offensives in this global war, on ships at sea and other far-flung battle stations our men are acquitting themselves with true Marine distinction. They will continue to do so. Of that I have not the slightest doubt. I am proud of them.

"The folks at home," knowing this, can be proud, too, and thankful today as they do honor to all Marines on the corps' 167th anniversary.

Richland G. O. P. to Wait on Bricker on Judge Post.

The Richland county Republican executive committee probably will make no endorsement of a successor to Municipal Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch until Gov. John W. Bricker asks for a recommendation, Ralph Hardy, county G.O.P. chairman, said today.

A municipal judge will be named by the governor before Judge Kalbfleisch takes office as Richland county common pleas judge in February. He was elected over Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston last week.

Hardy said he may ask Gov. Bricker in "two or three weeks" if he wants the county committee to recommend a candidate for the municipal judge's post.

The county G.O.P. chairman said Attorneys H. H. Schettler and Lydon Beam were seeking the office. Attorney Schettler frequently has served as acting judge during absence of Judge Kalbfleisch.

FORMER GALION MAN DESCRIBES SINKING OF AIRCRAFT CARRIER

GALION—A witness of the sinking of the Wasp, U. S. aircraft carrier, William Fleiner, husband of the former Alberta Schnelker, is visiting in Galion at the home of his wife's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Schnelker, while he is on furlough from the navy. Fleiner, a former Crestline man, is a seaman first class and has witnessed a greater portion of the gigantic battle still in progress in the Solomons.

Fleiner disclosed that in the middle of September he witnessed the sinking of the Wasp and also saw damage inflicted on another carrier not yet identified by the war department. He was, at that time, on a destroyer engaged in landing operations at Guadalcanal. He said, of the Marines which his ship landed there, "They are the toughest fighters in the world, and landed on the island in Higgins boats under cover of shell fire."

The broad-shouldered, 30-year-old seaman, said he landed in San Francisco a week ago and expects to return to sea in a month or two. At present he is on a 15 day furlough.

In describing Guadalcanal, the center of such fierce fighting, Fleiner spoke of the primitive life there and noted that supplies must be moved in constantly to maintain forces.

"The waters around the island are filled with Jap casualties and enemy dead were piled on the mainland," he disclosed.

In explanation of the Japanese ability to land forces on the island, the seaman said that high powered cruisers slipped into the American held island under cover of darkness and thus escaped detection by aircraft.

Fleiner and his shipmates, credited with sinking two enemy submarines during the action around the islands, witnessed a Jap torpedo or "fish" narrowly miss their boat and land on the beach. The Marines proceeded to decorate it as a monument to Jap marksmanship.

NEW OFFICER

Kalbfleisch Names Harmon to Be in Charge of Insignias.

Charged with devising and procuring appropriate insignia such as buttons, stickers, certificates and other matter for individuals and homes cooperating with the civilian defense program, Allen Harman, 354½ Park avenue west, has been named insignia officer by Defense Coordinator G. E. Kalbfleisch.

For some time Harman has been serving as assistant to Attorney Glenn W. Marriott, chief air raid warden. His new function will be to design some distinctive method of recognizing an individual's enrollment or assistance in a defense unit, or a home, factory or store compliance with OCD regulations and requirements.

SEEK PAY HIKE

Waterworks Salaries Workers Send Council Petition.

Fifteen salaried employes of the waterworks department — including Secretary Fred A. Lingafelter and the finance office staff—and five waterworks plant employes hired on an hourly basis, have petitioned council for pay increases.

Hourly wage workers say that "due to the rise in living costs and most all other commodities" they seek pay boosts of 15 cents an hour over the curent 50-65 cents-an-hour wage.

Office employes ask for a flat increase of $25 each in keeping with the raises petitioned for by police and fire department members. Sewer department employes also have asked for pay raises.

SUNDAY DRILL?

Auxiliary Firemen to Decide on Week-End Instruction.

If members of Mansfield's civilian defense firemen's auxiliary approve the plan at tonight's session of the first aid instruction session, future assemblies will be on Sunday afternoons.

Fire Chief Charles J. Seeburger, auxiliary instructor, announced today that members of the fire-fighting division have suggested the week-end meeting time for drill with apparatus and fire-fighting instruction. If the groups concur all sessions will be held on Sundays hereafter, Seeburger said.

Outdoor maneuvers will be transferred to a grassy spot near the Ohio Brass company offices, Seeburger said, to escape the season's muddy conditions at the North Walnut street drill area.

Recruits are wanted now for rescue squad instruction.

BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

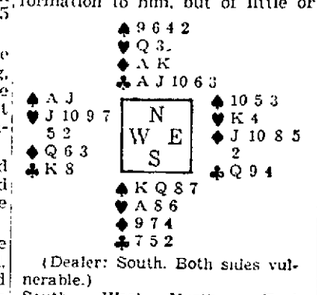
"The Authority on Authorities"

DON'T TELL THE ENEMY

When you know something important about the hand, which is unknown to the declarer, and which could be very valuable information to him, but of little or no value to your partner, please try to keep the knowledge to yourself. Try to pick some play, if you can, which will mislead him definitely. Lacking any way to do that, at least endeavor to adopt a course of acton which will keep the facts withheld from him.



(Dealer: South. Both sides vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
Pass	Pass	1 ♣	Pass
1 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass

After the heart J, Q, K and A formed the first trick, South used a diamond top as entry to lead toward his spade honors. The 9 was topped by the 10, K and A, and West cashed the heart 9. Without pausing to think, he ended his worry about the next lead by using what seemed like an innocuous card—the heart 10. Actually that made South's job a cinch.

The spade 6 was called from the dummy, and when East failed to over-ruff it with the J, only high enough trump out, but discarded a diamond, South knew that West had that important card. Hence it could not be caught in a finesse. The only chance was to drop it. So he led the spade 2 to the Q, and sure enough, the now unguarded J was picked up. That's all there is to this hand, as all of the rest of the tricks were sure for South except one in clubs.

If West had returned any card in his hand, except a heart, on that fifth trick, South would almost surely have guessed a second round spade finesse to be the best chance to stop the J from taking that crucial trick, and so would have failed to make his contract.

Tomorrow's Problem.

What defense would you advise on this deal against 4-Hearts by East?

FOOD MEETINGS

Series of Three Scheduled For Farm Women.

A series of three meetings for rural Richland county women are scheduled for Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday, Miss Elizabeth Bay, home demonstration agent, announced today.

"Meals from Homegrown Foods" will be the theme of a meeting at 11 a. m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Harry Stroup, north of Shelby, and another at 11 a. m. Friday in the Adario Community hall. Demonstrations showing how to prepare meals will be given.

There will be a sewing machine clinic at 10 a. m. Thursday at the Lexington Grange hall with R. D. Barden, agricultural engineer at Ohio State university, in charge. Women in the Lexington area may have their sewing machines cleaned and regulated at the clinic. A sack lunch will be served.

NAMED IN WEST

MILLERSBURG—Word was received here by Mrs. Sam Murray that her grandson, Dean B. Murray, 30, was elected county superintendent of Las Animos county, Colorado.

He is the youngest man ever elected to this post in that county. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Dean B. Murray of Trinidad, Colorado. The family lived here before going west.

THEATERS

Marine Thriller.

"Wake Island," Paramount film which resumes showing at the Ohio tomorrow is a dramatization of the heroic Marines defense of the mid-Pacific outpost and was filmed with the co-operation of the United States Marines. It shows how men outnumbered and outstripped in planes and guns fought on against hopeless odds, resisting for 14 days. Brian Donlevy, Robert Preston, MacDonald Carey, Albert Dekker and Walter Abel are the featured players.

Technicolor Drama.

Fred MacMurray is a forest ranger bent on hunting down a firebug who has been setting fires here and there among the redwoods in the Madison theater's film, "The Forest Rangers." Susan Hayward plays the role of a tomboy lumber mill operator and is considerably provoked when MacMurray returns from a sleuthing expedition and brings a wife—Paulette Goddard — with him. From then on it's a hilarious free-for-all with Lynne Overman, Eugene Pallette, Regis Toomey and Rod Cameron playing various roles. "Secret Enemies" is the co-feature.

Autry Picture.

"Bells of Capistrano" with Gene Autry, Smiley Burnette, and Virginia Ray, continues at the Ritz theater today. The story deals with rivalry between two rodeo outfits and their attempts to secure the contract for the Madison Square Garden rodeo. Autry skyrockets the box receipts of one show with his singing and riding demonstrations. "Police Bullets," a crime thriller with Joan Marsh and John Archer, is the co-attraction.

Show Fun Film.

Rippling with fun and humor, "The Old Homestead," continues showing at the Park theater. The Weaver family, widely known on the vaudeville circuit, has the top spot on the billing. A love story runs through the film between Maris Wrizon and Robert Conway. Conway is cast as a newspaper editor who is carrying on a crusade against crime, undeterred that the girl he loves is the daughter of the mayor who appears to be linked with the criminal element. "The Falcon Takes Over," is the second attraction.

COMMUNITY SURVEY ANSWER FORM

(Copyright, 1941, Wid Gunning)

EACH DAY OF THE WEEK ..... TO .....

NAME .....

ADDRESS .....

On Page 1 of the paper each day you will find a list of the advertisements to be checked that day.

All you have to do is to decide each day which Large Ad, which Medium Ad and which Small Ad you think will do the advertiser the most good. Just write three names on this blank each day.

$750.00 in awards go to those readers whose selections are nearest to what the majority of readers think. Every week is a separate survey with a dozen or more cash awards each week.

Every member of any family may send in one answer each week and there are many awards each week, but only one award for a good answer will go to any one family in any one week.

I THINK THESE ADS WILL DO THE ADVERTISERS THE MOST GOOD.

	LARGE ADS	MEDIUM ADS	SMALL ADS
Sun.
Mon.
Tues.
Wed.
Thurs.
Fri.
Sat.

You are NOT required to write a letter to receive an award.

The awards are decided on the selections above. We would really appreciate it, though, if you would write a note saying what you DO NOT LIKE and . . . also . . . WHY YOU LIKED some of the good ads.

We sincerely want your suggestions and ideas of how we may improve our advertising service for your benefit. Write your letter in your own way! It's the thoughts and suggestions that matter. You are not being "judged" by your letters. Actually they have nothing to do with the awards . . . but . . . they will be helpful by giving additional information to our merchants.

Your criticisms and suggestions will be given to the merchants to help them to improve their advertisements BUT the merchants will NOT be given the names of those who write the letters. This is so you may say just what you really think without embarrassment.

Answers Must Be In By Tuesday Midnight The Week After the Selections Are Made!

OPERATES TAXI FARTHEST NORTH

FAIRBANKS, Alaska — (INS) — Kitty O'Brien, self styled "farthest North woman taxi driver" has gone war-modern not old fashioned, she explains.

Starting as a truck-driving freighter, Mrs. O'Brien later branched into taxi service and did a right good pre-war business with tourists. Now she has added a bicycle to her equipment. It's a tandem job and is also used for deliveries.

MIXED TRENDS PERSIST OVER STOCK MARKET

Department Store Sales Stay Over Marks of Year Ago In Large Cities.

(By Associated Press)

NEW YORK — Slightly mixed tendencies persisted in today's early stock market dealings.

At an active opening gainers of fractions included General Motors, U. S. Steel, Woolworth and Kennecott. On the offside were Bethlehem, General Electric and Republic.

Further attention was given merchandising stocks as the New York federal reserve bank estimated department store sales in the metropolitan district during the week ended Nov. 7 topped the comparable period a year ago by 9 per cent. In the previous week the year-to-year upturn was 19 per cent.

BROADWAY

—By Dorothy Kilgallen

THIS being the apple-by-the-fireside season, it is about time for some of the midnight oil-burning bistro wanderers to start the perennial questionnaire that goes, "If you could invite any six persons in the world to dine at your house, whom would you choose?" Sometimes the number is raised to ten and the locale changed from the dining table to a desert island, but the idea is always the same, and usually the answers are about the same or at least in the same groove.

Kilgallen

Most of the game-players cull their half-dozen guests from the ranks of the internationally important. Stalin, Hitler, Roosevelt, Madame Chiang Kai-shek, Walter Winchell and Albert Einstein are great favorites, and you can bet that any list will contain at least three of these names.

Well, I am inclined to suspect that my friends who say they would invite these celebrities to dinner are just striking a pose, and not expressing their true heart's desire at all. Certainly nobody has stopped to figure out what it would be like after the six sat down to the table.

Can you imagine what it would be like? Well, it would be something like this. Stalin doesn't speak English, so he is out as a conversationalist, and he is used to those 32-course Kremlin dinners such as the one tossed for Wendell Willkie, so you had better get a little more food than usual into the larder and we will just leave Stalin with his napkin tucked into his blouse, digging into the caviar.

* * *

Hitler is not going to say much, either, because he is going to be furious that Stalin is at the same table, and if he does speak you can bet it will be in such a loud Sportspalast voice that the cook will be scared to death in the kitchen, and the souffle will be ruined.

* * *

Madame Chiang Kai-shek will be utterly charming, extremely intelligent, beautifully tactful, and as enigmatic as all-get-out. She will talk for the correct length of time to the gentleman on her right and the gentleman on her left, join unobtrusively in any general conversation, and behave like the perfect guest.

* * *

President Roosevelt will be jolly good company, affable, easy and entertaining. He and Walter will do most of the talking and they will talk to each other. Walter will ask the Prez how Harry Hopkins and Louise are, and the Prez will say fine and maybe tell a little anecdote about Harry, and Walter will tell the Prez, off the record, the names of ten local Nazis who ought to be in jail, and Hitler will recognize the names and start throwing a conniption. Then Albert Einstein will calm things down by telling the story of the little girl who gave him jelly beans so he would do her arithmetic, but you heard that one seven times and you know the punch line.

So what kind of a dinner party is that?

About now I can hear the silvery voices of readers saying, "Okay, who would YOU ask?" So I will lose no time in telling them.

First I would ask Alfred Lunt, and I would say to him, "You go ahead and cook the dinner, because I have been reading and hearing for 15 years about what a sensational cook you are, and I would like to try some of that much-heralded cuisine."

So there, with the first stroke, I would not only satisfy my curiosity, but (for I am sure every word of Alfred's publicity must be the truth) insure having a menu that people would talk about for weeks.

Then I would ask George Montgomery, the movie actor, because I would like to get a good close-up view of him and see if I could figure out why so many beautiful stars and starlets have fallen for him and then become terribly mad at him.

My other four guests would be Victor Mature and Eleanor Roosevelt, Nicholas Murray Butler and Veronica Lake. There is no particular significance to the selection of this quartet; it is sheer curiosity on my part and the desire to give a dinner party at which everyone, including myself, is entertained.

HOLLYWOOD

—By Robbin Coons

HOLLYWOOD—How will Hollywood get along on that "$25,000 top" income?

Hollywood, generally won't talk about it, is afraid to stick its neck out. So I went to William Perlberg, the producer. From past experience I guessed Bill would talk. He did.

Coons

Perlberg makes movies like "Remember the Day," and "Meanest Man in the World." He draws down something over $100,000 a year. He'd be hit.

HE SAID, first thing, that he wouldn't mind a tax like that, and that folks in Hollywood wouldn't mind.

He threw in a commentary about human nature and money. "I start off making $25 a week and I think it's great, but then I'm sure if I made $50 all would be rosy. So I do, and I spend more, and—Gosh, I say, if I made $100 I'd be on top of the world. When I do, I'm willing to settle for $200, by which time I'm buying better shirts, living in finer quarters, driving a bigger car. I'm making more, but I have no more. It's the same when it's $10,000 a year, or $25,000, or $100,000.

"As you go up the money scale you take on obligations. You marry and have a kid and buy a house. You add to it. Most people have a father and mother or other relatives to help, as I do. Instead of carrying $20,000 insurance, you carry $100,000. You travel in richer—and I don't mean better—circles. When you buy your wife a gift you make it a diamond wristwatch instead of a plain one; instead of a muskrat coat you buy her a mink.

"But luxuries aren't necessary to happiness. Money per se means nothing. To me it stands for a certain success, which means position—and to me that's everything. You get respect for what you've done—not because you have two cars and a home in Bel-Air. We can move into an apartment tomorrow and be just as happy. We had three servants, but we can do with our one—or none. My wife used to be a good cook, and I think she'll like doing it again."

HE FOUND "compensations," a $75 a month gasoline bill cut to $25 through tire-saving, possibly to $10 with rationing; ordinarily, he'd have bought two new cars this year—he can't; he might have bought also a new stove, icebox, other gadgets—he can't; he was pondering whether to keep his boy in a $1500-a-year private school or change as the boy wished—gas rationing answered, and the boy's in public school; nobody's giving big parties any more—bad taste for times like these.

"There's a big compensation in simpler living which brings families closer together," he said.

MARINES TELL TIME BY MAIL ON GUADALCANAL

News That Letters Have Come From Home Gets Through Jungle Swiftly.

(Editor's Note: The following story, distributed by the Associated Press, was written by a Marine Corps correspondent from Arlington, Va.)

By SERGT JAMES W. HURLBUT

GUADALCANAL, Solomon Islands—(Delayed—AP)—Amid battles which are making history, and with sudden death drifting through the jungles, one of the important events to the marines holding these islands is the arrival of mail from home.

Time is reckoned from one arrival of mail to the next—and the dates always seem far between. During the interim, much time is devoted to lengthy discussion of such questions as: When will the next mail arrive? How much will there be? And how recent will be the dates of the letters when they arrive?

By some mysterious grapevine, the fact that mail has arrived is known by every marine on the island almost before the first bag has hit the beach. The pace of activity increases. Good humor radiates. The mail handlers in each company are kept under constant observation.

Then comes that long-awaited moment when the jeep roars up with its precious cargo of mail bags in the back seat. All activity ceases for a few minutes. Differences in rank seem to disappear. Dignified colonels and plain privates stand side by side in eager anticipation.

"Kelly, Jones, Abernathy, Wjyzkowski, . . .," the mail distributor calls.

All hands stand fast until the mail bag is empty. There is always a chance that that last envelope might be "the" one. Nope, it's one more for that lucky fellow, Kelly.

Then each man, his prized collection of letters in his hands, moves away. The gregariousness that exists during air raids disappears when the time comes to catch up on the doings of the folks back in the states. The sacred business of reading mail from home requires solitude.

The most forlorn figure in the world is the marine who draws a blank in the mail distribution.

So, if you're proud of these fighting leathernecks and want to do something to help keep their efforts in high gear, keep the mail bags filled to overflowing.

DIES MONDAY

Crestline Woman Taken By Death in Mansfield.

CRESTLINE — Mrs. Mary Anna Horning of Lincoln Highway East, died Monday at 1:30 p. m., at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Mona Keller, 48 West First street in Mansfield where she had been taken a week ago. She had been ill for a year and a half.

She was born in Crestline Aug. 6, 1869, the daughter of the late Patrick and Mary Slattery Dunn. Her husband Frank Horning, preceded her in death in December 1926.

Surviving are four children, Mrs. Keller of Mansfield, Donald and Paul of Crestline and Dorothy at home. Also eleven grandchildren, fourteen great grandchildren and two sisters, Misses Sarah and Alice Dunn of Crestline.

She has been a lifetime member of St. Joseph's Catholic church, of the Alter society, the L. C. B. A. and the C. L. of C. lodges. Friends may call at the family home.

A definite time for funeral services to be held from St. Joseph's church has not been arranged. Rev. F. A. Slattery will officiate and burial will be in St. Joseph's cemetery.

BEGGAR JAILED, HAS $26,000

But He Keeps Right On Begging Even In Bull Pen.

NEW YORK —(NS)— William Beck, 69, a Broadway begger was termed the "world's best panhandler" today by night court attaches.

Beck, arrested for begging, carried bankbooks showing $26,823.23 on deposit in four institutions in addition to possessing some $130 in cash. Taken to night court, Beck begged twenty five cents from another prisoner in the bull pen and picked up a dime from a second prisoner who occupied the "paddy wagon" with him.

Fined $50, Beck paid on the spot with $1 bills.

Welcome To—

BURIAL SET FOR SCREEN VETERAN

Edna Mae Oliver, Famed For Portrayals of Dowagers, Dies in Hollywood.

(By International News Service)

HOLLYWOOD—Private funeral services today were set for Thursday at Forest Lawn Memorial park for Edna May Oliver, beloved by filmgoers for her portrayals of crusty dowagers, who died yesterday on her 59th birthday anniversary after a lengthy illness.

The veteran actress, a stage and screen favorite for four decades, was stricken with an intestinal ailment three months ago. Her condition took a turn for the worse last August and Miss Oliver was forced to cancel radio and screen engagements and enter the Cedars of Lebanon hospital.

With her when the end came were her attending physician, Dr. Carlyle P. Imerman, and her long-time friend, Virginia Hammond, New York stage actress.

"She died without being aware of the gravity of her condition," Miss Hammond said. "She just peacefully went to sleep."

Miss Oliver's passing followed by only a few weeks that of her close friend and fellow artiste, May Robson, who died Oct. 21.

The actress began her motion picture career in 1923 after appearing in the Broadway production of "Showboat." Her screen successes included "David Copperfield," "Tale of Two Cities," "Lydia," "Little Women," "Cimarron," "Romeo and Juliet," "Nurse Edith Cavell," "Pride and Prejudice" and "Alice In Wonderland."

Miss Oliver married D. W. Pratt in 1928 but divorced him five years later. Only close living relative of the actress is an aunt, Mrs. Hattie Cox of Malden, Mass.

C. R. Swearingen Was Formerly Employed At Empire.

C. R. Swearingen, 63, former Mansfield resident, died in Wyandot, Mich., General hospital last night after an illness of nine weeks, according to word received here today.

Mr. Swearingen lived in Mansfield from 1921 to 1929, and was employed at Empire Sheet and Tin Plate company. He moved to Canton and later to Ecorse, Mich., where he resided at the time of his death.

Surviving are his widow, Aletha; two sons, Cooney in the American air forces in Great Britain and Leslie, Detroit; a daughter and a grandchild.

Funeral services are incomplete. Burial will be in River Rouge Memorial cemetery, Ecorse.

CHILD, 3, DIES AT HOSPITAL

Martha Elaine Duncan Succumbs After Brief Illness.

Martha Elaine Duncan, three-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. David W. Duncan of Racmelton farm died at Mansfield General hospital last evening following a brief illness.

Surviving besides her parents are one brother, David, jr., and her grandfather, Clarence Stillwagon of this city.

Funeral services will be held from the Finefrock Funeral home Wednesday at 3 p. m. by Rev. C. L. Kern. Burial will be made in the Mansfield cemetery.

DIES AT AGE 75

ASHLAND—Charles N. Richert, 75, died this morning of a heart attack at his home, 333 Union street. Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 2:30 p. m. at the Zion Lutheran church.

LONG EPIC OF WIFELY HEROISM ENDS AS PARALYZED MATE DIES

(By International News Service)

JAY, Okla.—An epic of wifely heroism and of sacrifice and true friendship on the part of neighbors was ended today with the death of Mason Williams, 50-year-old school teacher, kept alive for the last 10 months only by the constant application of artificial respiration.

Since Williams was stricken with paralysis of his lung muscles last January 16 following an automobile accident, the spark of life was kept in his wasting body by his wife, Beulah, who alternated with faithful friends in applying the artificial respiration.

This consisted of the monotonous and tiring task of depressing his diaphragm, relaxing the pressure, and raising and lowering his arms, thus pumping air into his feeble chest rhythmically and without cessation.

The brave wife labored day after day in spite of the word of doctors that her task was hopeless. At one time she had worn her hands virtually raw, then devised some rubber mitts which protected them.

"I'll fight on as long as there's life in his body," she declared.

The neighbors, too, worked valiantly, "spelling" Mrs. Williams for hours at a time day and night.

The case soon attracted the attention of the nation. Mechanical respirators—"iron lungs"—were provided for the stricken man. Other devices were used, one an ingenious "iron arm" which manipulated the lung muscles much as Mrs. Williams and the neighbors had done.

None in Williams' peculiar case adequately met the emergency. At one time he was taken by ambulance to Oklahoma university 200 miles away and placed in a horizontal iron lung. He couldn't breathe in it. Mucous formed in his throat. He choked and became panic stricken.

He was returned to his home and another iron lung was found for him, and it appeared helpful for a time, but this time too it was necessary for his wife and the neighbors to resume their manuel manipulation.

There were periods when he appeared to be improving, but each time he grew weaker after ward, and last night he died.

NAMED AGAIN

Retail Merchants Elect Pecht, All Other Officers.

Officers of the Retail Merchants association were re-elected for another year at the annual meeting of the board of directors of the association at the Mansfield-Leland hotel last night.

Merle C. Pecht, president; William S. Ross, vice president; L. A. Ott, treasurer, and V. H. Lodde, secretary-manager, were those returned to office.

Elected to the board of directors to serve with the three first-named officers were Joy A Herbert, John W. Graham, Carl L. Russell, R. M. Calene, C. H. Saylor and Charles Siegenthaler.

A short business session was held.

DEATH FOLLOWS LONG ILLNESS

Mrs. Florence Campbell Dies At Mt. Gilead.

MT. GILEAD—Mrs. Florence Rebecca Campbell 83, died this morning at her home here as a result of several years' illness. She was born in Mt. Gilead and was a member of the Methodist church.

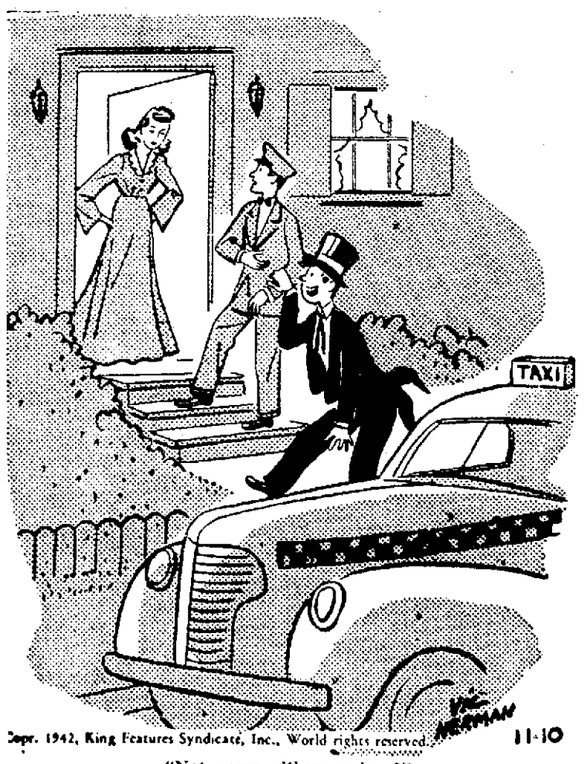
Laff-a-Day



"Not yours either, ma'am?"

The heretofore peaceful realms of Mansfield's public library were invaded yesterday by pounding carpenters putting the finishing touch on four new sections of shelves in the children's reading room to be used for new history and biography books. And those "quiet please" signs couldn't very well be obeyed because readers had to raise their voices to a quiet shout when talking with librarians in order to be heard above the hammering.

Carl P. Brumenschenkel, Lexington R. D. 1, won't permit his son, now 14 years old, to chauffeur the family car around for a while, even if gasoline gets plentiful. The elder Brumenschenkel figures it wouldn't be worth $20. He was hailed into municipal court yesterday by the state highway patrol on the charge of permitting a minor to operate a motor vehicle on the public highways. He pleaded not guilty but was found guilty on testimony of the arresting officers and his admission that his offspring is only 14 and without an operator's permit. A fine of $20 was suspended pending obedience to the law, Brumenschenkel paying costs.

It was known last Tuesday night that unusually heavy straight voting helped the Republicans to a landslide victory in the state and county, but the extent of the straight-ticket voting wasn't revealed until today when the county election board announced the actual vote results. In Richland county, nearly 11,000 of the 20,000 persons who went to the polls voted straight tickets. The straight Republican tickets outnumbered the Democratic tickets, 6,888 to 4,100. In Shelby the straight vote was 802 for the Republicans and 391 for the Democrats. The Republicans also piled up a big margin in the county rural areas. The Mansfield results showed 3,352 straight G. O. P. ballots and 2,792 straight Democratic votes. Gov. John W. Bricker carried 64 of the 93 precincts in the county.

LOVE BLAMED

Father of Two Kills Woman, Turns Gun on Self.

WHEELING, W. Va. — (U.P.) — Charles Hertig, 30-year-old father of two children, waited in ambush for Mrs. Nettie Games to leave her home on Wheeling Island today, shot her to death then killed himself, police said.

Detective Harry Wolf said that the double shooting was a murder-suicide which resulted from "unrequited love."

Hertig, who lives with his wife and children, parked his automobile in an alley near Mrs. Games' home and waited for her to leave for work, Wolf said. A small shotgun with two shells fired was found near the bodies of Hertig and Mrs. Games.

FDR REVEALS GROUP REPORT ON MANPOWER

WMC Committee Urges Central Planning, Would Ban All Military Enlistments.

(By Associated Press)

WASHINGTON — President Roosevelt made public today a report of the war manpower commission's management-labor policy committee opposing immediate enactment of compulsory national service legislation and urging tightening of governmental manpower machinery.

The unanimous report, calling upon "government, industry, agriculture, and labor for strong leadership, aggressive action and maximum co-operation," made these specific recommendations:

1. That authority and responsibility for formulating an overall manpower program integrated with military and production planning be centralized in the chiefs of staff of the army and navy, the lend-lease administrator, and the chairmen of the War Production board and the WMC.

2. That voluntary enlistments in the armed forces be stopped and that the selective service system be placed under the WMC and authorized to make special draft calls by direction of the army and navy for men with specialized skills.

3. That military and civilian training programs conducted in non-military educational institutions be co-ordinated by WMC Chairman Paul V. McNutt.

4. That the WMC's employment service be made "the primary clearance agency for the recruiting and employment of workers" and "a strong administrative and operating organization" for the WMC, with congress providing the necessary additional funds and removing "impediments."

The committee urged that industry, agriculture and labor co-operate with the WMC to obtain "uniform acceptance and compliance" with its policies and directives.

These groups were urged further to help the WMC eliminate wasteful labor turnover in vital war work, speed the shifting of workers from non-essential to essential work and the training and hiring of those now unemployed, insure maximum use of the skills and capacities of workmen and accelerate the rate at which men now deferred as "essential" workers can be released to the armed forces.

Beef Quota Cut To 70 Per Cent By OPA Ruling

WASHINGTON—(AP)—If you bought three steaks a month last year, you're entitled to only two and the extra one goes to the armed forces or to our allies abroad.

That's the edict of the Office of Price Administration under the terms of a new cut in civilian beef allowances effective immediately to make certain the men fighting this war "have all the meat they require."

Deputy Administrator Paul M. O'Leary announced the order reducing by a further 10 per cent the amount of beef slaughterers may put on the market for civilians' in the Oct. 1-Dec. 31 quarter. This brought deliveries down to 70 per cent of the amount sold in the same quarter of 1941.

At the same time, the OPA forbade slaughterers from exceeding their quotas by 10 per cent in any quarter with the privilege of chopping that amount off the quota for the following period.

Quotas for veal, 100 per cent of 1941 deliveries, lamb and mutton, 95 per cent, and pork, 75 per cent, were left unchanged.

LONG ILLNESS ENDS IN DEATH

ASHLAND—Mrs. Augusta Boeberg, 76, died at her home, 316 Prospect street, last evening following a lingering illness. She was born in Stockholm, Sweden, and lived in Ashland county for the past 36 years.

YANKS RACING TOWARD AXIS REAR IN LIBYA

Americans Enter Port of Oran, Continue Fighting at Key Coastal Points.

paign to the nearest approaching point of a second front."

Vichy broadcast reported "superior armored forces" were violently attacking Casablanca, in French Morocco, but declared that Vichy troops were still holding out at the eastern approaches of the city.

The broadcast said French coastal batteries and the 35,000-ton battleship Jean Bart were vigorously replying to the Allied assaults.

Vichy dispatches said France's 86-year-old chief of state, Marshal Philippe Petain, had decided to assume command of French land, sea and air forces.

"American tanks entered Oran at 11:45 today," a Vichy (French) broadcast announced.

"Landing forces occupied the hill and fort of Santa Cruz, dominating the bay."

The Vichy announcement followed a previous broadcast declaring that armistice negotiations had collapsed and that fighting continued at Oran this morning.

Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's Allied headquarters reported the capture of more than 2,000 prisoners as American tanks closed in on the city from three directions, and said: "Our casualties are light."

Other major targets of attack in the three-day-old "second front" offensive included Casablanca, Atlantic port 300 miles southwest of Gibraltar; Rabat, capital of French Morocco; and Philippeville, 250 miles east of Algiers.

Philippeville lies close to the frontier of Tunisia, whose government head, the Bey of Tunis, has been notified by President Roosevelt that American troops plan to pass through the colony to help trap the Axis armies in Libya.

Latest dispatches reported that the broken remnants of Nazi Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's Africa corps were now fleeing westward into Libya, leaving only rearguards to oppose the victorious British 8th army on the Egyptian-Libyan border.

A British communique said swiftly pursuing British vanguards engaged the Axis rearguards yesterday at Sidi Barrani, 184 miles west of the old El Alamein front, and at Salum, 230 miles west of El Alamein.

Dispatches said the frontier area was being cleared of the enemy, and it was apparent that Rommel, in headlong flight with approximately 25,000 of his original army of 140,000 troops, would make no attempt to defend the strategic Halfaya ("Hellfire") pass on the frontier.

Large numbers of Axis prisoners, chiefly Italians abandoned by their German allies, continued to pour into British detention camps in the desert.

Battlefield reports said the British were jubilant over President Roosevelt's word that American troops would move eastward across Tunisia to help in the final annihilation of the vaunted Nazi Africa corps which only a few months ago threatened to overrun Egypt, the Suez and the entire middle east.

Coincidentally, it was disclosed that British land and air troops now have landed in North Africa, bolstering the massive sea-borne American expeditionary force.

With the fall of Oran and Algiers, American troops had already gained virtual control of the western Mediterranean shore of North Africa, and powerful contingents were striking around on the Atlantic side.

The Morocco radio said that American shock troops were continuing to debark at Mogador, 180 miles south of Casablanca, and that Gen. Auguste Nogues, commander in chief of Vichy's Moroccan forces, had moved his headquarters inland from Rabat. The airport at the latter place already had been abandoned.

Casablanca itself apparently still continued to offer resistance after the Vichy commander had rejected an ultimatum presented under a flag of truce by Maj.-Gen. George L. Patton, jr., commander of American forces in that sector.

Havas, the French news agency, acknowledged that Casablanca was seriously threatened, with American troops landing on nearby beachheads and Allied warships blocking the harbor entrance to prevent the escape of French vessels.

"All forces have been given naval supporting fire against forts," Allied headquarters said, referring to the Casablanca sector.

"Counter measures were taken where our ships met with resistance from enemy naval forces."

Havas said the situation was also becoming "more and more difficult" around Philippeville.

Meanwhile, Paris dispatches said Jacques Doriot, head of the pro-Nazi French people's party, demanded an immediate declaration of war against the United States and Great Britain today, while in Washington President Roosevelt declared.

No act of Hitler or any of his puppets can sever relations between the American people and the people of France. We have not broken relations with the French. We never will."

A Vichy broadcast reported mass arrests in all the principal towns of unoccupied France as authorities sought to crush widespread activities by "people who are actively helping the enemy break up the French empire."

The Vichy government, apparently fearing an open revolt against France's Nazi conquerors and the puppet Vichy regime, put a strict ban on any public manifestation tomorrow, Armistice day.

Reports reaching London said the American-British campaign in North Africa was developing so rapidly that it outstripped the Allied communication system and made the situation obscure at several points.

An Allied headquarters spokesman said the whole operation was unreeling with smooth precision and slight American casualties.

As usual, the Axis propaganda machine was grinding out fantastic claims of Allied losses.

Without any confirmation elsewhere, the German radio asserted that a Nazi U-boat torpedoed a British battleship of the Queen Elizabeth class in the North Atlantic and declared German underseas raiders "successfully attacked British and American warships and transports off the African coast."

An Allied spokesman flatly denied previous Vichy claims that four Allied warships and six transports had been sunk.

The British admiralty announced that a British submarine torpedoed an Italian cruiser off the north coast of Sicily.

Other developments in the global war:

Russian front—A report suggesting that the Red armies were breaking the Nazi ring around long-besieged Leningrad was broadcast by the German radio today, declaring that German dive bombers had attacked the Soviet fortress of Schlusselberg. The fortress, on Lake Ladoga 25 miles southeast of Leningrad, has been in German hands for more than a year. Soviet dispatches have never claimed recapture of the town and until today the Germans have never hinted at its loss.

Elsewhere, the German drive on Stalingrad and the push toward the Georgian military highway in the central Caucasus were reported to have dwindled to a series of light clashes with the Russians cutting down Nazi strength wherever it was encountered.

He Helps Allies

France's outstanding military hero, Gen. Honore Giraud today had arrived in Algeria and had taken over civil and military government of the French African colonies, a statement by Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower revealed. The move was expected to be of tremendous help to American forces in consolidating their African gains.

German Drives In Russia Dwindling

MOSCOW—(AP)—The German drive on Stalingrad and the push toward the Georgian military highway in the Caucasus appeared to have dwindled today to a series of light clashes in widely separated sectors, but the Russians reported they were digging away at German positions and cutting down Nazi strength wherever it was encountered.

The mid-day communique reported that the Germans succeeded in crossing a river northeast of Tuapse on the Black sea, but driven back by Russian troops. Another German attack in a sector of the Nalchik front in the Caucasus likewise was repulsed and several tanks destroyed, it was reported.

At Stalingrad there was only light activity.

Portugal, Spain Give Satisfactory Replies

WASHINGTON — (UP) The White House said today that "satisfactory" oral replies were made to President Roosevelt's messages to Generalissimo Franco of Spain and President Carmona of Portugal regarding the American campaign in north Africa.

Mr. Roosevelt sent messages to Franco and Carmona disclaiming any American intentions on their territories and pointing out the desirability of their neutrality for all concerned.

White House press secretary Stephen T. Early said today that "oral replies" were made when the messages were presented by American diplomatic representatives Saturday night.

Asked to describe the nature of the oral replies, Early said: "Satisfactory."

British Bombers Attack Hamburg

BULLETIN

LONDON — (AP) — United States airmen flying four-motor Consolidated Liberators have joined the RAF's coastal command in a day and night offensive against Axis U-boats in the Bay of Biscay.

LONDON — (AP) — British bombers making their first night attack on Germany since Oct. 15, last night attacked Hamburg and other targets in northwest Germany, the air ministry announced today.

Fifteen of the attacking aircraft are missing, it was announced.

"Clouds were widespread and crews reported severe icing but a considerable tonnage of bombs was dropped," the air ministry said.

The RAF in recent weeks has concentrated its night attacks on Italian centers, its last previous night raids having been on Genoa Nov. 6 and 7.

Last night's excursion followed up daylight raids on occupied France by the United States Army air forces and the RAF.

U. S. FORCES TIGHTEN GRIP ON GUADALCANAL

Make It Increasingly Hard For Japs to Bring Up Reinforcements.

dividually superior to the Jap soldier in all respects."

As for the future outlook Holcomb said the Japs had been pouring reinforcements into Guadalcanal at the rate of 900 every other day but that "things are shaping up so there will be more interruptions to these reinforcements."

He put the number of enemy planes shot down in actual combat on Guadalcanal by Oct. 23, at 320, a ratio of exactly five to one.

Carrying the fight to the enemy, American and Allied troops have encircled one Japanese position on New Guinea and apparently are holding the upper hand on Guadalcanal island in the embattled Solomons.

The western jaw of a vice which the Japanese had hoped to squeeze upon Henderson airfield—control spot of the Solomons—has been stationary for two days. This was interpreted as evidence that soldiers and marines have halted the original Japanese threat against the airfield from that quarter.

To the east, American troops are pushing forward a drive to encircle the enemy beachhead at Koli Point where reinforcements for the original invasion force were landed.

The Americans advanced four miles east of the beachhead Saturday, Guadalcanal time, the navy said, apparently isolating that eastern jaw of the vise.

Meantime in New Guinea Allied forces inflicted heavy casualties on the enemy in a movement which enveloped a Japanese position behind Oivi, Nipponese supply base.

Raking the enemy front lines with machine gun fire and dumping loads of bombs on communications lines, Allied fighting planes worked closely with ground troops in the action, General Douglas MacArthur reported.

The Allied command also told of heavy bombers searching out an enemy transport off the coast of New Ireland and inflicting damage which forced the transport skipper to beach his craft.

Two days ago American planes struck at the invasion forces to the west. They found and destroyed six landing boats on the beach. Ground positions also were assaulted.

In another aerial attack, American planes moved northward to bomb the Jap seaplane base at Rekata bay on Santa Isabel island. There they destroyed three big float-type biplanes.

A lull in major action at sea has continued for more than a week, but, the navy has referred to one of the previous engagements with announcement that an unidentified destroyer lost in battle on the night of Oct. 11-12 was the Duncan, commissioned only last April.

In the battle the American force sank one heavy cruiser, four destroyers, and a 5,000 ton Japanese transport. Five officers and 58 members of the Duncan crew are dead or missing.

Churchill Sees Turn In War Road

LONDON—(AP)—Prime Minister Churchill said today that "we have not so far in this war taken as many German prisoners as they have taken British, but these German prisoners will no doubt come in in droves at the end, just as they did last time."

The prime minister described the Egyptian campaign as "a remarkable and definite victory," and added: "The bright gleam has caught the helmets of our soldiers and warmed and cheered all our hearts."

"I have never promised anything but blood, tears, toil and sweat," he said in an address. "Now, however, we have a new experience.

"The Germans have received that measure of fire and steel which they have so often meted out to others.

"Now this is not the end. It is not even the beginning of the end. But it is perhaps the end of the beginning."

His Highness, Sidi Ahmed Pacha, bey of Tunis, was the recipient of a terse letter from President Roosevelt requesting him to permit U. KNOX ISSUES SUB WARNING

Says Nazis Will Concentrate U-Boats on Supply Lines To North Africa.

North African operation in his opinion was "in the nature of a second front" and, that depending on what counter action the Germans took, there probably would be "a lot of fighting there for a long time" so that the front would not cease to be an active one with the defeat of German Marshal Rommel and the remnants of his army.

About Rommel, Knox cautioned specifically: "Don't put it down yet as a completely accomplished fact that Rommel is defeated."

He said the Germans were "capable of a lot of skill" and there was even now a possibility of their reinforcing their African force but that as far as he could tell the whole campaign was going well for the Allies.

Gas Rationing Also Meets Set-Back as Supplies Fail to Arrive.

time within the first two weeks of December.

Postponement of registration and rationing is attributed to a "bottleneck" which delayed delivery of the type A books to distribution points.

Although not yet advised of the changes by the OPA office, local gasoline rationing officials were of the opinion that no change will be made in the school registration and registrar setup which merely will be carried out Nov. 18-19-20 instead of Thursday-through-Saturday of this week.

Postponement of the basic "A" registration, the second delay since rationing plans were announced, will delay subsequent filing dates for supplemental "B" and "C" rations.

In West Virginia, where part of the state had been included in the earlier eastern-states rationing program, the entire state has had "A" books available since midsummer and registration there is proceeding, as the war chiefs say, "according to plan."

More Selectees Leave County For Induction Tomorrow.

Selectees to fill the Richland county draft quota for November will go to Cleveland tomorrow, Thursday, and Friday of this week and Tuesday of next week for final examinations and induction, board clerks said today.

This month's calls are among the heaviest received by the three county boards. The December quota, however, will be smaller, advance notices indicate.

Board 1 men will go to Cleveland Wednesday and Thursday, the Board 2 group Friday, and the Board 3 selectees next Thursday. Men inducted from the county this week will have a two-week furlough before they begin training, it was pointed out by clerks who said the one-week furlough plan would not become effective until later.

AXIS LEADERS PLAN ATTACK

Hitler, Duce, Laval Meet To Consider Desperate Move Against U. S.

the new situation in North Africa affects the terms of the armistice with Vichy.

A change in armistice terms could concern either the use by the Axis of the French fleet, or the occupation of the rest of France or available parts of the French empire.

There was some speculation the French fleet might attempt to put in at Bizerte, before the forces under U. S. Lieut. Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower get there.

Bizerte and Tunis in Tunisia are on a hump of the African coast where it is closest, only 130 miles, to Sicily and the Italian mainland. Bizerte also is only about 350 miles by air from the chief Libyan base of Tripoli.

Axis strategy was handicapped, however, by the notable weakness of their air forces in the Mediterranean of late.

Although the Berlin radio hopefully broadcast that the main French fleet had steamed from its European base at Toulon on Sunday, nothing has been heard from it yet.

The Russian official news agency, Tass, reported in a dispatch from Switzerland that Mussolini had officially applied to Berlin for military assistance.

German representatives in Rome were said to have advised Mussolini to start military operations in French Northern Africa "without waiting for aid."

United Nations propaganda was on the offensive. The British radio told Italians day and night the rankling story of how the Germans had abandoned Italian divisions in Egypt.

Some evidence that this kind of talk was sinking in was seen here in Italian radio commentators' remarks about fears of Allied invasion and admonitions for a show of courage like that of the British after Dunkerque.

"HERE COMES THE ARMY, ADOLF—LOOK AND LISTEN!"

And how it's coming, Adolf! Trained to the minute, rarin' to go—four and a half-million strong! And every rugged fighting man started on his way over the steel highway called the American Railroad System!

Free Americans from every city, town and crossroad are being gathered and sped to camps—by rail. They're toughened and trained...then they're sent to maneuvers—by rail! Back to camp for final training; then rushed, with their equipment, to embarkation points—by rail!

Yes, Adolf, the Railroads have moved nearly 7,000,000 fighting men since Pearl Harbor—66% in modern Pullmans. That doesn't count furlough travel, either.

Railroad workers are war workers, Adolf—from the watchman at the crossing to the boss behind the desk. 1,400,000 of them are working together, moving more troops, more vital war equipment, than at any time in history. And as the tempo increases, America's Railroads are ready to move more, and still more, men—safely and on time.

Today Is Marine Corps Anniversary

TODAY is being given to special recognition of the Marines, marking the 167th anniversary of the formation of the United States Marine Corps, oldest of the nation's organized fighting services.

New traditions are being added to old ones as the heroism of Marines has been evidenced in many parts of the world since United States entry into the present war, with brilliant performance at Wake Island and current operations in the Solomon Islands area vividly in mind at the moment.

"Semper Fidelis"—Always Faithful—is the inspiring motto of the Marines, and wherever there has been call for action, "from the halls of Montezuma to the shores of Tripoli," the carefully chosen men who proudly bear the title of Marines have acquitted themselves with distinction.

While the Marine Corps is a distinct branch of service, insofar as enlistment requirements and official personnel is concerned, it is a part of the United States Navy to which special duties are assigned—including such hazardous landings as were made at Guadalcanal and other enemy-held territory in the Far East.

It is explained that the Marine Corps is never large—that it expands during wartime to meet temporary needs and quickly readjusts to peacetime requirements—but that it is always in readiness for any call to action.

With a record of service in every war in which the United States has been engaged, it is noted that Marines have made more than 180 landings in foreign countries and have been pioneers of progress on many peaceful missions.

"Wherever the enemy lurks," said Lieut. General Thomas Holcomb, commandant of the Marine Corps, "I know Marines today will be too busy to celebrate the corps' anniversary . . . But the American people in the homes for which these Marines are fighting will remember and do honor on this 167th birthday."

Many young men from Mansfield, and elsewhere in this area, are now serving in the Marines—some of them we know very well—and while their branch of service is being honored today, if a thought wave can be flashed across the Pacific it will carry a message of love from their families and of confidence and admiration from all of us.

An Armistice That Came Too Soon

WITHIN a month after last year's observance of Armistice day Japan had opened undeclared warfare against the United States by its dastardly attack at Pearl Harbor and this nation immediately became an active participant in the struggle of Great Britain, Russia and China against domination by the Axis powers—Germany, Japan and Italy.

In an Armistice day editorial a year ago it was said: "Aligned with the Allied forces before the armistice, the United States sees no other course than to resume its support of the nations now actively in the war, and the whole defense and aid program is based on recognition of the necessity of defeating the Axis powers before there can be a return to orderly government in Europe or assurance of safety from Nazi control in the Western Hemisphere."

At that time, long after Japanese militarists had made all plans for the strong and vicious attack to be made on Sunday, December 7, their representatives in the United States were still engaged in shrewdly hoodwinking Americans by carrying on an appeasement farce in Washington and isolationists were earnestly contending that the United States should "keep out of the war."

This has been a busy year, as well as a disturbing one, and the United States is now moving forward in a determined way, to correct some of the mistakes made before and after Pearl Harbor, and to proceed, as rapidly as possible, toward more effective participation in the war, both in manpower and output of military equipment and supplies.

Except as a tribute to the memory of those who gave their lives in the first World war, and an expression of gratitude to those who returned after gallantly serving their country, this Armistice day will retain little of the meaning that marked earlier observances—for it is now realized that the armistice of November 11, 1918 was premature and that the resultant peace was only temporary.

Such a mistake should not be made again.

Training the Younger Soldiers

AN IMPORTANT decision, and one that may have a direct effect on determining the length of the war, rests with congress this week.

It is whether civilian or military opinion shall rule in requiring a year's training before 18- and 19-year-old youths drafted into the army can be assigned to combat service.

The senate bill, as passed before election, includes such a restriction, but the house yesterday, by a vote of 178 to 40, declined to endorse this limitation and the outcome in conference is still in doubt.

President Roosevelt and all military authorities advise strongly against this delay in enlarging army strength and argue that the training period should be no longer than required to fit inductees for the service that will be required of them.

It will probably be within the next year that the United States will face its most vital need for army manpower and any action that serves to delay full use of potential strength will work to the detriment of the United Nations. The matter of required training of inductees is properly one for military, not civilian, decision.

Who Started 'Ammunition' Song?

THE KEY WORDS of the song, "Praise the Lord and Pass the Ammunition," have been attributed to various authors, and are now credited to Lieut. Howell Forgy of Haddonfield, N. J., a former football star who is a chaplain in the navy.

That first line, when the two ideas are once put together in such fashion, seems as inevitable as if it had written itself—which is likely to be the way with any true stroke of genius.

Shipping Losses Worry Japanese

—By CARTER FIELD

WASHINGTON—The most accurate information about Japanese moves comes from China. In view of all the puppet states—the "tame" Chinamen used for many years by the Japanese as they slowly moved toward their goal of domination of all Asia—it is perhaps not surprising that some of these puppet chieftains should be double crossing their masters. Or maybe the thing is worked in some entirely different fashion, graft being what it is everywhere, but especially in the Far East.

It will be recalled that weeks before the Japanese storm burst on the Solomons reports came from China of a big Japanese armada enroute there. This was not the first time, nor the third, that the Chinese information about Japanese movements proved to be correct.

It does seem a pity, incidentally, that better use could not have been made of all this accurate advance information. What was done with it was that it was broadcast over the world. In the first place most newspaper readers regarded it merely as rumor, and hence rather unimportant. Others regarded it as Chinese propaganda, with some ulterior purpose. The only people, it would appear, who took it seriously were those who KNEW it was true—the Japanese.

NOW the latest information from these Chinese sources is that the Japanese are gravely worried about their losses of merchant shipping. They are not able to replace it, according to the Chinese, with anything like the rapidity with which it is destroyed.

Again according to the Chinese, the Japs are not worried about their prodigious losses of airplanes at all. The Chinese say that the Japs are able to replace them about as rapidly as they are destroyed. This information, assuming it to be correct, is astonishing to official Washington.

It had been assumed here that the heavy losses of Japanese planes would gradually wear the Japs down—produce superiority in the air for the United Nations despite the longer supply lines of the Allies. It was also thought that the same thing with respect to pilots would happen to Japan which is believed to have happened to the Germans, there being no doubt among the top men in the R.A.F., for instances, that present day German pilots are not as good as the aviators who fought in the air for Germany earlier in the war.

THERE is no doubt that Japan has been losing a great many more planes than we have, if one excludes those destroyed on the ground in Hawaii, the Philippines and Singapore early last December. This is believed to be because the Zeros, while more maneuverable, and capable of greater altitude than most planes they have opposed, are also more fragile.

But the concern of the Japs about merchant shipping is most encouraging. Nippon simply must have vast amounts of shipping to supply her troops, her fleets and of course her air force, scattered as they are over thousands of miles of ocean.

And there is no doubt that our bombers and our submarines have been taking a heavy toll of her merchant ships. Lets hope the good work goes on!

Listen World!

Give Yourself

—By ELSIE ROBINSON

I HAVEN'T always applauded you, Eleanor Roosevelt. Perhaps it's because your terrific energy leaves even me, who am no Limping Lizzie, gasping.

Besides, your record is almost too perfect for belief. Don't you ever have a run in your stocking . . . or an untidy bureau drawer . . . a perfectly silly, unreasonable, wifely tantrum over the breakfast toast?

Don't you ever get fed up with all those corny inspirational meetings you attend, and long to start throwing spit balls at the Lady Chairman?

Yes, I admit, Eleanor, I've had my doubts whether you were a regular human. But not any more. For you said something to that crowd of English reporters who interviewed you recently in London which has made me your admiring slave forever.

"Twasn't much. Just a few words. But the most eloquent oration couldn't have put that mob of weary, bewildered humans more at their ease—or more quickly won their warm affection.

There they were, crowding about you, questions tumbling thick and fast . . . questions that thinly veiled their doubt, discouragement, even their hostility toward an ally whose ways were strange to most of them. You must have sensed that doubt and hostility. You could easily have resented it, snubbed them . . . gone High Hat . . . reminded them of a few Uncomfortable Facts. But, instead, you smiled and said:

"I'M A LITTLE HARD OF HEARING—I MAY NEED AN INTERPRETER."

Oh, shrewd diplomat and gallant lady, you knew, instinctively, the greatest answer to give to any desperate human demand.

You revealed your own weakness . . . put aside your own pride . . . shared the common, black bread of bitter human experience.

It's easy to preach. It's a thrill to anyone's egotism to give advice. But it takes a truly great soul to share its own hurt and helplessness with the other fellow in his hour of need. Yet that's the only kind of sympathy that really counts. Would you care a hoot for a dentist who'd never had a toothache himself? Can you expose your shame or remorse to some complacent human fathead who has never known temptation, never erred? No you wouldn't and you can't. But you'll throw open the door of your heart to the stranger who openly admits that he has felt the cruel lash of life and displays his scars.

"I'M A LITTLE HARD OF HEARING"—there's as great a lesson in humanity as you'll find in a ton of classics. How much more hope we could spread, how much more comfort we could bring into our own strained lives if we could follow its generous admission.

The fellow who's down doesn't want your admonition, your wisdom, your reproaches. No matter how well you phrase it, such advice only belittles him. He has only one great and all-encompassing need—he needs YOU. He wants to know that you, too, have suffered and lost and made a fool of yourself. He wants to know that you need his compassion and help and that you trust him to help you as you help him.

So, and so only, you can restore his self-respect. And win his love and trust.

P. S. Maybe I like Eleanor's speech particularly because it hit home. Last year, thanks to a freshly polished floor, my own car collided with a steel typewriter stand. And has been nothing but scrap ever since. If you don't think that does something to you, just try it. But henceforth, thanks to E. R., I'll grin and take it in my stride.

Interpreting the War News

Offensive Seen as Turning Point, Mediterranean Control Is Sought

—By LOUIS F. KEEMLE

THE COMBINED British-American operations in North Africa mark a turning point in the war—one of the three great phases bearing directly on victory or defeat for the cause of the democracies.

The first was the battle of Britain late in 1940. Britain survived and stayed in the war. Hitler was never closer to having complete victory in his grasp than he was then.

The second was when he made his colossal blunder of invading Russia. Had he turned loose in western Europe or the Mediterranean the tremendous power which he has dissipated in Russia, the state of the world might have been far different in this November of 1942.

The third phase differs from the first two in that they were a matter of survival. The third is a question of victory. The question of survival now pertains to Hitler, not the United Nations.

The great offensive has started and there can be no question that this is the beginning of the second front, or perhaps a merger with the battle lines in Russia into a single front.

* * *

THE timing and precision of the offensives in Egypt and in northwest Africa are a source of great satisfaction and augur well for future Allied strategy and tactics. The landing of the Americans in the west coincided perfectly with the rout of the Axis armies in Egypt. Something might have come unstuck but didn't.

Rommel already is in full retreat into Libya before the pursuing British forces. In front of him now are the Americans and there is no hope of taking refuge in French Tunisia.

Unless Hitler can get heavy reinforcements to Rommel in a hurry, which seems improbable, the alternative is likely to be a Dunkirk-like retreat from Tripoli in an effort to get the remnants of his army to Sicily or the Italian mainland.

The northwest Africa invasion is only in its early stages and until the extent of French land and sea resistance becomes apparent it will be impossible to appraise the course of the battle in the Mediterranean basin.

It is a battle not only for control of the African coast but for the entire Mediterranean. Once firmly established on the southern shores, the Allies should be able to dominate the inland sea from Gibraltar to Suez. If the entire French fleet goes into action and Hitler forces the battle-scarred Italian navy into the open, there might be a difficult sea struggle but the attitude of the French fleet has not yet been made apparent.

ONCE the Mediterranean is cleared, the problem of the long supply haul of nearly 14,000 miles around the Cape of Good Hope to Suez will be out of the way and the armies of the Mediterranean can be reinforced and supplied with comparative rapidity through Gibraltar. It will mean a great easing of the strain on Allied shipping.

When the combined British and American forces in Africa have been raised to the necessary strength, an invasion of Europe would be possible, probably through Italy or the Balkans.

It presents a terrific problem to Hitler. He dare not strip Western Europe and expose himself there. If he draws his strength from Russia, it means abandoning his eastern campaign. He may be forced to do it to save himself in Europe. Thus the Mediterranean campaign could furnish the aid which Russia has sought from her Allies.

Watching Trends

—By JACK STINNETT

(Second of two articles on housing in Washington.)

WASHINGTON—The capital's 280,000 civilian government workers and the million other souls who live in the District of Columbia or its suburbs, have three legitimate complaints, all directly or indirectly traceable to the District's strange, voteless government.

The first is lack of housing; second, lack of hospital beds; third, insufficient transportation.

Since defense hiring started here, there have been 13,816 new dwelling units completed; about 22,200 more are in various stages of buliding; and about 20,000 more planned. It's obvious that housing is far short of needs for the capital's new 360,000 population and the 30,000 or more expected to come in the next six or eight months.

MORE than two years ago, civil service and budget bureau warnings about the influx of new workers were broadcast, but the haggling and delays have continued through ten months of actual war, with WPB, or its predecessors, occasionally tossing a monkey wrench into the machinery with priority rulings (WPB recently vetoed construction of 5,000 dwelling units, but when a howl went up, hurried out with the statement that order was only "temporary").

The latest scheme tossed into the middle of the housing muddle is for the government to purchase at wholesale private dwellings to house war workers. If the owners would move out of town, it would help.

The transportation problem is likely never to be solved. The Capitol Transit company, operating buses and trolleys, seems to have done about as well as it could. But with about 75 per cent of the government workers concentrated in the less than two-mile square "government quadrangle" abutting Constitution avenue from Capitol Hill to the War Department, and the most compact shopping district of any city of its size in the country, there's not much that can be done.

A third of Washington's "normal" taxicab fleet is laid up for lack of tires, gas or new cars. Private transportation has also suffered from those things.

THE lack of hospital beds is dangerous. There have been reports recently of mothers being taken home within a day after their babies are born; that it requires an emermgency to get a bed in a ward; that nurses are being worked to near exhaustion.

The District commissioners recently let a half-million dollar contract for expansion of Gallinger hospital. It's another case of too little, too late.

These are some primary reasons why the turnover in newly employed government personnel is of such staggering proportions (80 per cent a year in some departments, and even 60 per cent excluding calls to the colors).

When they are given serious consideration, it's amazing Washington is doing its wartime job as well as it is.

Man About Manhattan

One Lawyer's Fee

—By GEORGE TUCKER

NEW YORK — Some lawyers' clients pay off with potatoes, poultry and smoked hams. Attorney Dave Wolper got paid off with a night club — the Hurricane, sometimes called Tahiti-on-Broadway. It's an odd story, full of bypaths, but that the Hurricane has turned into one of the biggest money-making spots in town is not the least illogical—if you know Dave Wolper.

He's a big, solidly built fellow of some 185 pounds who looks like the ex-college fullback he is. He has a round, cheerful face and is an opportunist both with humor and business.

The story begin in New York City in 1901, when Dave was born, son of a doctor who specialized in obstetrics. His father, until one year when he voted wrong, did a good business with Tammany politicians, and wanted Dave to be a doctor too. But Dave was more interested in football than a career.

HE WAS a four-letter athlete at De Witt Clinton high school, but before he got his first fame, with Hamilton Institute, he did a hitch in the army during World War I. He chose Brown university, after turning down scholarships at half a dozen other schools, and although weighing only 139 pounds as a freshman fullback he placed on Walter Camp's third All-American team.

Life was pleasant at Brown. One of Dave's roommates was Quentin Reynolds. Besides playing football, basketball and baseball, Dave took part in a musical show as a song and dance man. In his third year he decided upon a career—law. He left Brown for Syracuse, and when he graduated, he came to New York.

His father gave him a fistful of money and told him to take a trip to Europe, but Dave spent it on a good time. Then he went to work with a big law firm, with which he spent five years.

EVENTUALLY he met Seymoure Robinson and they set up their firm, specializing in theatrical clients. In their first three weeks they pocketed $10,000—but poured $8,000 back into a bad play whose cast included Leslie Howard, Gregory Ratoff, Reginald Owen, Warren William, William Gargan, Melvyn Douglas and a youngster named Clark Gable.

Robinson left for Hollywood to write and Dave went back to his clients. One was Virginia Hill, Georgia heiress, who had $5,000 invested in the floundering Hurricane. She couldn't get her money back, so in April of 1941 she turned over her interest to Dave as a fee. Dave added enough to make up equal shares with Irving Zussman and James Shean, the other owners, and plunged into the business zestfully. Six months later he and Shean bought Zussman's share from profits.

You can see now why the Hurricane has boomed. Theatrical-wise Dave, lover of a good time, knew how to hire for the Hurricane's shows. And Shean shines in handling the restaurant end. They're a good team.

A Farmer's Diary

The Hogs Mired Down

—By CALVIN A. BYERS

IN MID-SEPTEMBER when the ground was dry, we made a pig pen down along the little run that serves as outlet to our spring. The boys and I used odds and ends of fence, and enclosed almost an acre of scrubby grass, with shade and water that seemed a haven for shoats. Here we installed the clumsy self feeder that I had also made, and evolved a shelter from an old fruit box.

For quite a while they were contented and happy—they ate their fill, wallowed and rooted, drank the good spring water and how they grew! We were quite proud that it took so little effort on our part.

Then it began to rain. Every day or two it rained again. The hogs mired down. The feeder became an island in a sea of mud. The shelter stood atop a little lake. We put more feed in, and hoped it would clear up and the mud would dry, but it didn't.

Nights grew cold and frosty. One cold midnight I could not sleep, so I carried fodder from the cornfield and laid it thick upon the highest ground. The hogs were discontented. The following morning, when I looked, the cornstalks were submerged. It was raining, and the broad bristly bodies of those hogs moved belly-deep toward the feeder. It wouldn't do.

That morning we tore out a panel of fence and let them through. With all the family to help, we drove them to a large, straw littered stall. We watched them enter. They nosed into the clean pile of straw with contented grunts. Next morning they were still snoring, sprawled on the straw, when I quietly entered the feeding entry to give them corn.

Now, every day, pail after pail of water must be carried to let them drink. No, life on a farm is not all roses.
